gh Command Claims Notable Successes as Britain And Italy Lash Away at Each Other on Land, Sea And Air in Fight for Control of the Mediterranean And Supremacy in Africa; Hits on Battleships

XTH SUCCESSIVE DAY OF RAIDS ON ENGLAND

By The Associated Press
The Italian high command claimed notable successes as Britain and Italy lashed away at each other on land, sea and in the air today in their fight for control of the Mediterranean and supremacy in Africa.

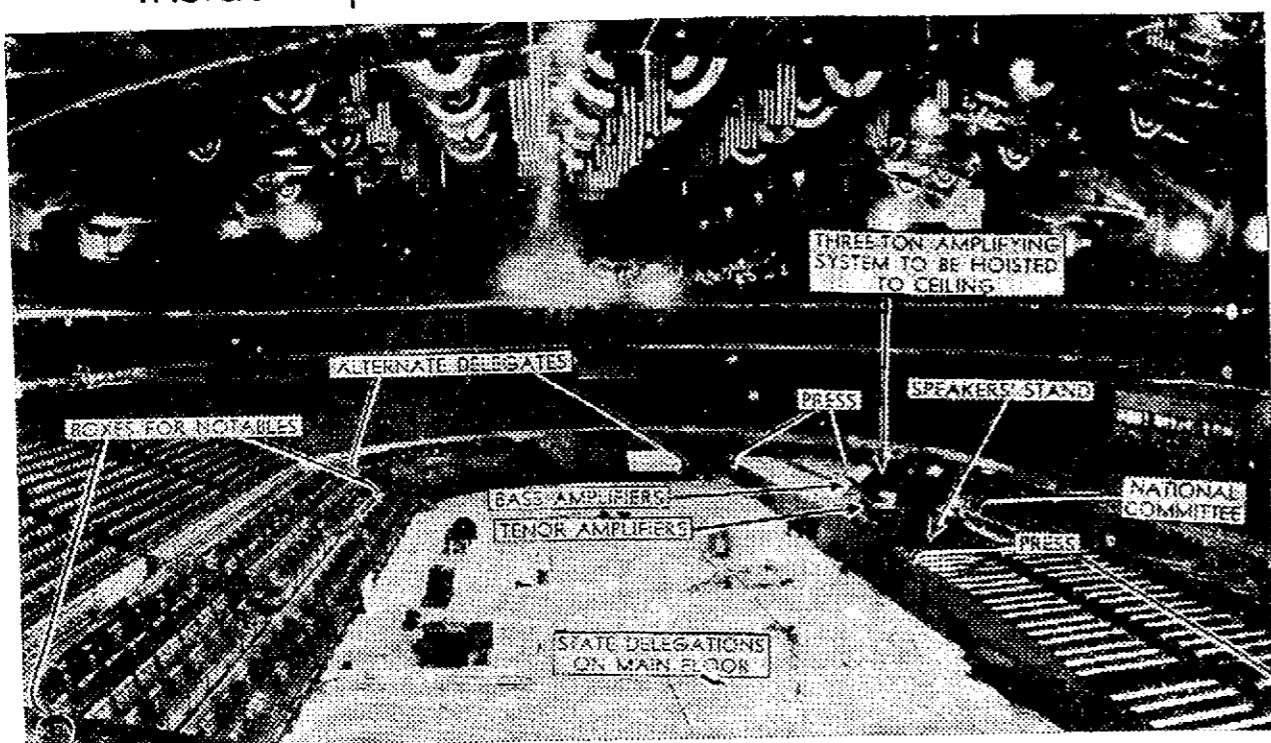

A naval engagement that started in the Mediterranean five days ago still is going on, the Italian command said, with Italy's bombers peppering British ships with bombs. They scored hits on a battleship and two cruisers yesterday, the communique.

Italian forces which since Wednesday's dawn have been besieging the British fortified post on the Libya-Ethiopia frontier, have taken a village near the town, the Italian command said.

The German high command said today that the Italian command had been marked by the capture of a number of merchant ships with "valuable cargoes" and the sinking of 24,674 more tons of enemy cargo space.

In the topsy-turvy Balkans a major development was the report that Rumania, cleaving more and more to the Rome-Berlin Axis, would withdraw from the Balkan Entente unless Turkey turns out officials who engineered alliance with Britain and France.

14,000 National Guardsmen in State Ready For Three Weeks of Intensive Maneuvers

RUMANIA READY TO BREAK FROM BALKAN ENTENTE

Bucharest, July 13.—(P)—Rumania was reported authoritatively today to be ready to sever her Balkan entente ties with Turkey unless officials responsible for Turkey's mutual assistance pact with Britain and France are replaced.

The German legation here told King Carol's government that the latest Berlin white book "proves conclusively" that Turkey planned with the Allies for an attack on Rumania as well as Soviet oil fields.

The government censor approved an editorial in Bucharest's German language newspaper, Tagblatt, charging Turkey with "treason" to the Balkan Entente, consisting of Turkey, Rumania, Greece and Yugoslavia, by "conspiring against the sovereignty and integrity" of Rumania.

In German circles here it was reported that Gen. Ion Antonescu, leader of the pro-Nazi Iron Guard, still is in prison.

Probably Will Be Called Out For More Rigid Service "Some Time This Summer or Fall," Major Martin Says

READY FOR SACRIFICE

Harrisburg, July 13.—(P)—Pennsylvania's 14,000 National Guardsmen, ready for three weeks of intensive maneuvers in New York state next month, probably will be mobilized for more extensive service "some time this summer or fall," says Major General Edward Martin, their commander.

Announcement in Washington last night of plans for calling up immediately 50,000 guardsmen in scattered sections of the United States, followed reports that all of the nation's guardsmen would be mobilized September 1, if Congress grants authority to President Roosevelt.

Pennsylvania troops were not listed among those to be called first, unless the Keystone State's 21st Coast Artillery might be one of the seven aircraft regiments which the White House announcement said, also were to be brought into service.

"Eventually all of the state's troops will be called," said General Martin at his Washington, Pa., home.

LAVAL KEY MAN OF PETAIN'S NEW FRENCH REGIME

By The Associated Press
Vichy, France, July 13.—Pierre Laval, apostle of appeasement for dictators, became the key man of the new French authoritarian government today with his designation as eventual chief of state in succession to Marshal Henri Philippe Petain.

The 54-year-old Petain chose the 57-year-old Laval as "vice-president of the council of ministers" in a cabinet of 12 men, including himself as its head.

The cabinet planned to meet today for the first time.

The newspaper Le Petit Dauphin stated the government has decided to detach the French franc from the pound sterling and peg it to the American dollar.

Meanwhile, all French ports, harbors and river mouths from the Seine to the Bidasoa river on the Spanish frontier, together with all ports along the Mediterranean coast and in North Africa, were placed under authority of the French navy.

MILITIA ISSUE IS REVIVED PRESSURE EXERTED ON FARLEY

President's Proposal to Put 50,000 Soldiers in the Field for Active Service Brings the Controversial Subject of National Mobilization Back to Fore, With Congress in Recess Until July 22

MEASURE COVERING SITUATION IN HOUSE

By The Associated Press
Washington, July 13.—President Roosevelt's proposal to put 50,000 militiamen in the field for active service brought the controversial subject of national guard mobilization back to the fore today.

The decision to recommend calling out almost one-fourth of the total national guard strength was reached late yesterday by Mr. Roosevelt and Henry L. Stimson, his new secretary of war. Congress must approve before the plan can be put into action.

With congress in recess for the Democratic national convention, there was no immediate comment on Capitol Hill. However, when Mr. Roosevelt in a special message on May 31 asked authority to mobilize the guard for any defense emergency, the request ran into a barrage of criticism.

The White House announcement yesterday said tentative plans were to call out four of the guard's 18 divisions, seven anti-aircraft regiments, and an indefinite number of coast defense units. Indications were that a training period of perhaps a year was contemplated.

Earlier at his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt had disclosed that mobilization of the entire guard—numbering 230,000 citizen soldiers—was under consideration.

Britain Registers 32-Year-Olds In Move to Speed Up Mobilization

Approximately 300,000 Men Summoned Before Nightfall in Response to Latest Call; Brings Total to 3,300,000.

ISLAND BOMBED AGAIN

By The Associated Press
London, July 13.—(P)—Britain's new highly-gearred mobilization program, which has been putting 7,000 men a day into khaki, was extended today to include 32-year olds as the nation tapped deeper into its reserves of manpower to meet the threat of invasion.

Approximately 300,000 men were called to register before nightfall in response to the latest call to the colors, bringing the total summoned to date to more than 3,300,000.

Leading urgency to the mobilization speedup was the growing activity of Germany's bombing squadrons, which roared across the channel again during the night to rain explosives on southwest England, Wales and Scotland.

Renewed German sorties came today. The Air Ministry announced that an "enemy" bomber was shot down in the English channel by British fighter planes, and a raider was chased away over a northeast England town.

The ministry had announced earlier that 11 of the Nazi raiders were shot from the skies in the preceding 24 hours. The new German loss brought the week's "bag" to 73 and the total shot down, since the first daily widespread raids on England June 18, to 110. Two British planes were reported missing in the last phase of the war in the air.

WEIRTON TO CONTEST DECISION OF N.L.R.B.

Pittsburgh, July 13.—(P)—The Weirton Steel Company today planned to "contest to the limit" a National Labor Relations Board order accusing it of "flagrant" violation of the Wagner Labor Act.

T. E. Millson, president of the $25,000,000 concern, said the ruling would be appealed to the courts because "the company is convinced the board, by its conduct, of the hearing, disqualified itself from rendering an impartial decision."

He called the NLRB decision in the four-year-old case "about 99 per cent ineffectual and 1 per cent substance."

TRAFFIC FATALITY NEAR BORO

Edward Wingard, 58, a WPA Worker, is Killed Instantly About 9:45 O'clock Friday Night When Struck by a Car Operated by Russell Blum, While Walking in The Road at Rogertown, East of Warren

OFFICIALS CONFIRM STORY OF THE DRIVER

Edward D. Wingard, 58, of Clarendon, R. D. 1, was killed instantly about 9:45 o'clock last night when he was struck by a car while he was walking east along the Roosevelt Highway, about one mile east of Warren.

Wingard was hit by a Chevrolet coach driven by Russell Blum, 24, of Clarendon, R. D. 1, which was en route west.

Blum reported to authorities that he had just slowed up because of the bright lights of cars approaching from the opposite direction when the form of the man suddenly loomed up in front of him. He stated that it was impossible to avoid hitting the man.

Wingard suffered a fractured skull and was crushed about the face.

State Motor Police and Coroner Ed C. Lowrey were called by those first at the scene and a car was sent for the Peterson ambulance, but the man was found to be dead before the ambulance arrived.

Blum told the coroner that he was traveling between 40 and 45 miles per hour just before the accident, but that he had slowed down when a line of cars approached from the opposite direction.

VOLCANO IN TOKYO BAY ISLAND ERUPTS

Tokyo, July 13.—(P)—The volcano Miyajima was reported in eruption today and dispatches to the newspaper Nichi Nichi said 19 persons were known to have been killed or injured and 30 were missing.

Lava was reported hissing into the sea, while a cloudburst deluged thousands of islanders attempting to board rescue ships, including a warship and two steamers.

Food and medical supplies were rushed to the scene, which is a small island in Tokyo bay, 60 miles south of Yokohama.

As crowds assembled for the big party meeting—virtually certain to renominate the president—Farley's old New York associates urged him to carry one step farther his declaration of yesterday that he would not "take a walk" if President Roosevelt runs again. And, they reported, he was wavering.

A candidate himself, Farley, who directed the president's 1932 and 1936 campaigns, long has been an opponent of the third term movement. Moreover, he is one of the very few of the many politicians in Chicago who knows just what Mr. Roosevelt's plans are.

Leaders of the third term movement regarded Farley's statement of yesterday as at least a partial victory in their effort to persuade him to direct the 1940 Roosevelt campaign through its early stages. His pronouncement came at least.

1,610 ABOARD REFUGEE SHIP

New York, July 13.—(P)—The U. S. Liner Washington arrived from Galway, Ireland, today on her final war refugee removal trip, with 1,610 passengers, 273 of them aliens.

The voyage was uneventful in contrast to her last trip, when she was stopped by a German submarine.

Three hundred eighty of the passengers were children under 10 and the ship, as on her last two voyages, resembled a floating nursery.

One of the children was the 9-year-old son of British Informant.

Chicago, July 13.—(P)—Headquarters were opened in a Loop hotel today for an organization dedicated to nominating Wendell L. Willkie for president at the Democratic national convention next week.

Explaining the purpose of those who would have the Republican standard bearer lead the Democratic party as well, Guy Warren of Corpus Christi, Texas, chairman of the organization, said:

"The Nominee Willkie Democrats organization was formed to provide a medium for the people to express their desire for national unity and it is our profound belief that the delegates from all states will heed the wishes of the vast majority of the people of the party and obey their mandate for a unified nation."

Roosevelt Gives Good Imitation of Citizen Only Mildly Interested in Demo Convention

Washington, July 13.—(P)—Being his reputation for eager interest in politics, President Roosevelt today gave a good imitation of a citizen only mildly interested in the Democratic national convention and the ensuing presidential campaign.

While still reserving his decision on a third term nomination, he declared flatly yesterday that he would not go to Chicago during the convention—presumably not even to make an acceptance speech, should that problem arise.

At the same time, he indicated his summer schedule would follow a routine of alternate weekends on tours.

ord's Grandson Takes as His Bride Pretty Blonde in Pageant-Like Church Ceremony

By MARY ELIZABETH PLUMMER
Southampton, N. Y., July 13.—Twenty-year-old Anne McNeill and Henry Ford, 2nd, grandson of the automobile manufacturer, were married today in a pageant-like ceremony of the Roman Catholic church.

As they stood at the flowered altar of the Church of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary, assignor Fulton J. Sheen gave a discourse on the power of love.

"Rings can be broken and lost," said, "but love is undying."

The pretty blonde bride was smiling as she went to the altar, her long white veil trailing behind her.

The 22-year-old son of Mr. and

Mrs. Edsel Ford was baptized into the Catholic faith, the faith of his bride, by Monsignor Sheen late yesterday in the presence of his parents, his bride-to-be and her parents.

Long before the marriage ceremony, hundreds of villagers had gathered across the street from the little church to view the notables and to applaud such personages as former New York Governor Alfred E. Smith, Henry Ford, Sr., and William S. Knudsen, head of the nation's defense production program.

The bride's 13 brothers and sisters and her 100 first cousins, uncles and aunts formed a cheery family background for her wedding.

Weather outlook for the week beginning Monday: North and Middle Atlantic states: Fair and warmer Monday; local thundershowers and warmer Tuesday; generally fair and cooler middle of week and warmer by Friday with showers Friday or Friday night.

Great Lakes: Shower periods Monday and Tuesday and again toward end of week; warmer toward end of week. Temperature will average below normal; precipitation about normal.

AS A DEFENSE MOVE

Philadelphians, July 13.—(P)—Public utility and industrial companies in this area, highly important in the national defense setup, took new precautions against unauthorized visitors to their plants today in a series of swift moves to guard against sabotage.

Groundwork for the new regulation was laid six weeks ago at a conference of government agents and officials of the General Electric Company, Philadelphia Electric Company, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia Gas Works Company, Bell Telephone and Keystone Telephone companies, a utility spokesman said.

Armed guards will be stationed, beginning Monday, at each of Bell's key plants, the company announced and anyone entering will be required to have a pass. Previously only employees in main departments were required to carry passes.

One official of the Bell Company described the measures as strictly precautionary and said there have been no reports of attempted sabotage. Bell President Philip C. Staples sent each employee a prepared statement warning against divulging any telephone conversation or any matter of company business to outsiders.

KEYSTONE STATE GROUP IS BUSY

Chicago, July 13.—(P)—Philadelphia City Chairman John E. Kelly led the campaign to draft President Roosevelt for a third term today as the vanguard of the Democratic national convention.

Kelly, acting national committeeman in place of former Governor George H. Earle, conferred last night and again today with Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins, Senator James Byrnes of South Carolina and Frank Walker of New York, who are said to be representing the president at the convention.

Walker, a former Pennsylvanian, has been mentioned prominently as successor to James A. Farley should the postmaster general step out as national chairman.

Other early arrivals included former Pennsylvania Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh and U. S. Senator Joseph P. Guffey, both strong supporters of the third term proposal.

Lawrence was represented as being especially anxious that the convention adopt a strong anti-war plank in its platform.

Kelly has urged that a broad program of physical education for youth be advocated in a "preparedness and peace" platform plank.

Members of the delegation, already committed to renomination for President Roosevelt, were promptly button-holed by supporters who are pressing for a Roosevelt-Hull ticket. The delegation will caucus Monday

gh Command Claims Notable Successes as Britain And Italy Lash Away at Each Other on Land, Sea And Air in Fight for Control of the Mediterranean And Supremacy in Africa; Hits on Battleships

FIFTH SUCCESSIVE DAY OF RAIDS ON ENGLAND

By The Associated Press
The Italian high command claimed notable successes as Britain and Italy lashed away at each other on land, sea and in the air today in their fight for control of the Mediterranean and supremacy in Africa.

A naval engagement that started in the Mediterranean five days ago still is going on, the Italian command said, with Italy's bombers peppering British ships with bombs. They scored hits on a battleship and two cruisers yesterday, the communiqué.

Italian forces which since Wednesday's dawn have been besieging the British fortified post on the Abyssinian frontier, have taken a village near the town, the Italian command said.

That Britain was getting in her blows, too, was acknowledged by the Italian command in the announcement that an Italian destroyer had been lost "by enemy bombardment."

The German high command, meantime, said its sea war with Britain had been marked by the capture of a number of merchant ships with "valuable cargoes" and the sinking of 24,674 more tons of enemy cargo space.

In the topsy-turvy Balkans a major development was the report that Rumania, cleaving more and more to the Rome-Berlin Axis, would withdraw from the Balkan Entente unless Turkey turns out to be an ally of Britain and France.

The new Rumanian totalitarian regime went ahead with its work of shaping the country to Rome's wishes. One of the new anti-Semitic decrees took away the rights of government positions from thousands of farm workers and industrial technicians were demobilized to leave the army and return to productive civilian jobs.

The unbroken pattern of German air attack on Britain—intensive bombing raids and an attempted "starvation blockade"—the world wondering when the "real" onslaught will come, but Adolf Hitler knows the answer, and he is not telling.

However, Luis P. Lochner, Associated Press bureau chief in Berlin, pointed out today that the blitzkrieg against Britain would mean only when Hitler has connected himself that the ground is thoroughly prepared, and that the German would not mind waiting for the day when necessary.

Raiders on England's Scotland and Wales again yesterday and last night, the sixth successive day of heavy assault, cost the Germans 11 bombers, the British said, and killed at least 10 civilians. No full statement of casualties and damage was given, however.

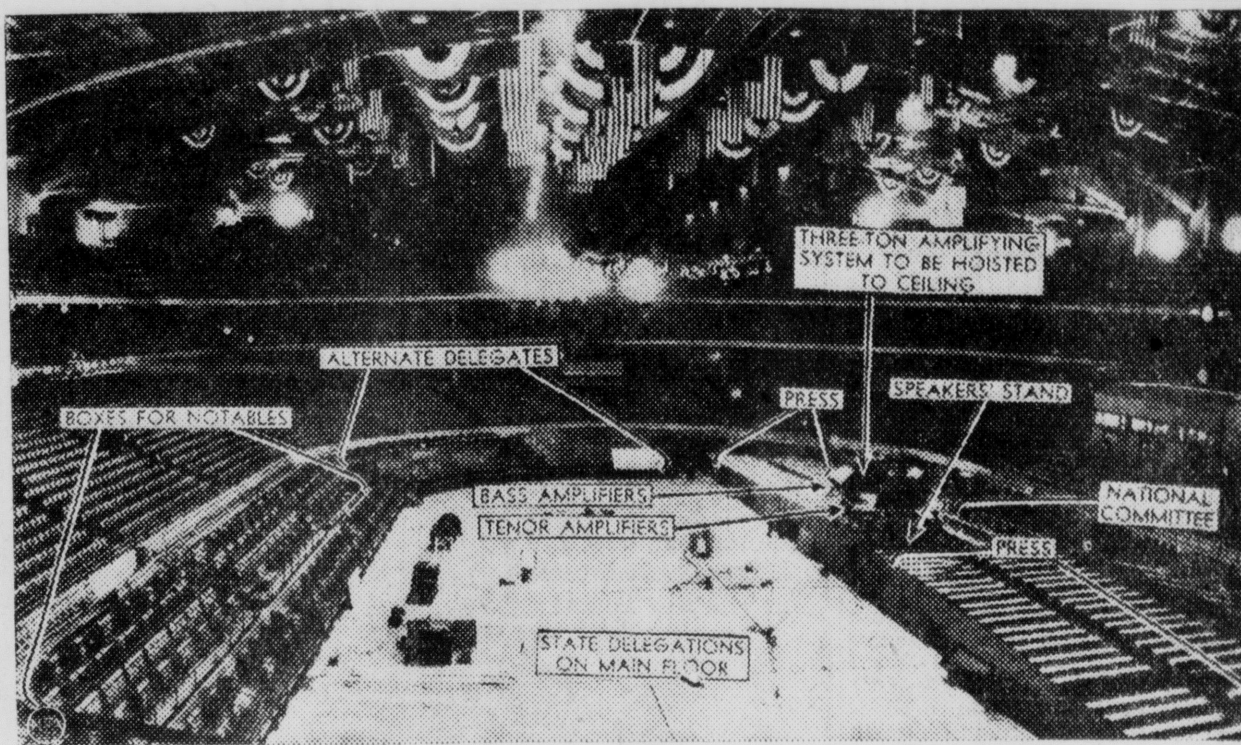

British fighters hit back with bomb and machine-gun attacks on the French coast, airmen in the Netherlands, and objectives in Germany itself.

While the aerial war continued, the German navy, too, was active. It added the trimmings to her new totalitarian cloak. Albert Lein, last president of the third public, and the old cabinet of ministers resigned.

In German circles here it was reported that Gen. Ion Antonescu, leader of the pro-Nazi Iron Guard, still is in prison.

At the same time, King Carol's new totalitarian Rumanian regime put into effect anti-Semitic orders forcing Christian wives of Jews to give up government jobs.

This was one more of a series of steps being taken speedily to create in this country, a small-sized model of Europe's larger totalitarian states, and followed a night of conferences involving King Carol, German air and military attaches and most of the members of the cabinet of Premier Ion Gigu.

Diplomatic circles said Rumanian foreign policy was reviewed in what they labeled the beginning of closer German-Rumanian cooperation.

Philadelphia, July 13.—(P)—A pistol bullet through the heart ended the life of Anthony "Chipp" Carfagno, identified by Police Inspector Joseph McCoy as a "tough guy" who had been arrested numerous times as a suspicious character.

He was killed last night a few hours after escaping from Detectives John Gara, Richard Ambrose and George Shick who said they wanted to question him about his "numbers" activities.

"It would be quite a financial sacrifice for many of the officers and men, but if the War Department thinks this is necessary, of course it will be done."

Colonel C. C. Curtis of Allentown, commander of the state's anti-aircraft regiment, asserted its 50 officers and 1187 enlisted men in Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton, Lancaster, Lebanon, Pottsville and Reading, are "ready to move within four hours after any call."

A test mobilization recently was effected within that time.

Spokesmen for the conservative Almanac said that their own separate tabulation, which is now nearing completion, would show an "overwhelming" majority for their candidate.

Almanac himself, who has said that he would establish his own "legal" congress if he failed to get a fair count, declined to discuss the administration party's claims.

The 54-year-old Petain chose the 57-year-old Laval as "vice-president of the council of ministers" in a cabinet of 12 men, including himself as its head.

The cabinet planned to meet today for the first time.

The newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois stated the government has decided to detach the French franc from the pound sterling and peg it to the American dollar.

The newspaper said the government had not yet announced the rate to the dollar, but the franc, which formerly was 176 5-8 to the pound, now may be set at 43.30 to the dollar.

Meanwhile, all French ports, harbors and river mouths from the Seine to the Bidassoa river on the Spanish frontier, together with all ports along the Mediterranean coast and in North Africa, were placed under authority of the French navy.

This was announced in a decree signed by Chief of State Marshal Henri Philippe Petain which was published in the official journal at Vichy.

Although Petain had planned to set up his headquarters in German-occupied Versailles, a communiqué last night said the government would not be moved to the Paris region unless he "obtains all necessary guarantees assuring its complete independence."

Secretary Stimson meanwhile received assurances from two high militia officials that both the officers and men of the guard were "ready and willing" to go on active service "today, tomorrow, or at any time."

Congress will be asked to grant the president the partial mobilization authority as soon as it reconvenes July 22. Under existing law, the president can call out the guard only to meet a threatened invasion or to deal with insurrection or disorder.

The house already has pending a bill which would empower the chief executive to use the guard under other defense circumstances.

This was introduced after he requested such authority in his May 31 message. The request was called "shocking" by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich), Rep. Fish (R-N.Y.) termed Roosevelt's plan "outrageous."

Leaders of the third term movement regarded Farley's statement yesterday as at least a partial victory in their effort to persuade him to direct the 1940 Roosevelt campaign through its early stages, at least. His pronouncement came (Turn to Page Nine)

TRAFFIC FATALITY NEAR BORO

Edward Wingard, 58, a WPA Worker, is Killed Instantly About 9:45 O'clock Friday Night When Struck by a Car Operated by Russell Blum, While Walking in The Road at Rogertown, East of Warren

OFFICIALS CONFIRM STORY OF THE DRIVER

Edward D. Wingard, 58, of Clarendon, R. D. 1, was killed instantly about 9:45 o'clock last night when he was struck by a car while he was walking east along the Roosevelt Highway, about one mile east of Warren.

Wingard was hit by a Chevrolet coach driven by Russell Blum, 24, of Clarendon, R. D. 1, which was en route west.

Blum reported to authorities that he had just slowed up because of the bright lights of cars approaching from the opposite direction when the form of the man suddenly loomed up in front of him. He stated that it was impossible to avoid hitting the man.

Wingard suffered a fractured skull and was crushed about the face.

State Motor Police and Coroner Ed C. Lowrey were called by those first at the scene and a call was sent for the Peterson ambulance, but the man was found to be dead before the ambulance arrived.

Blum told the coroner that he was traveling between 40 and 45 miles per hour just before the accident, but that he had slowed down when a line of cars approached from the opposite direction.

He stated that he had no time to swerve his car or stop before striking Wingard, who was thrown into a ditch on the right side of the road by the blow.

Coroner Lowrey permitted the body to be moved to the Peterson Funeral Home.

Blum, who was questioned at the motor police barracks by the coroner and Private D. G. Williams, of the motor police, was not held.

Several other witnesses who were in the vicinity at the time also were questioned. A number reported having seen Wingard walking along the road just prior to the accident.

Wingard was well known in this section.

He was born in Clarendon, May 14, 1882. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Sylvia McMillan, of Kane; two sons, Frank and Fernan, of Warren; three daughters, Mrs. Sylvia Laughrey, of Warren, Mrs. Angelo Scaine, and Ida May Wingard, of Clarendon.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed. The body is at the Peterson Funeral Home.

NEGRO SLAYER GOES TO CHAIR ON MONDAY

Philadelphia, July 13.—(P)—George W. Howell, 21-year-old convicted slayer, was taken by automobile today to Rockview penitentiary near Bellefonte where he will be executed shortly after midnight tomorrow for the death of Charles J. Westdahl, Jr., a Pennsylvania railroad detective.

The young Philadelphia negro was accompanied by Warden R. J. Beveridge of Holmesburg prison.

Westdahl was fatally shot in Fairmont Park guard headquarters here last December 7 after he had arrested Howell on a charge of stealing coal from railroad cars. Albert Bainger, a park guard, was wounded before Howell was subdued.

1,610 ABOARD REFUGEE SHIP

New York, July 13.—(P)—The U. S. Liner Washington arrived from Galway, Ireland, today on her final war refugee removal trip, with 1,610 passengers, 273 of them aliens.

The voyage was uneventful in contrast to her last trip, when she was stopped by a German submarine.

Three hundred eighty of the passengers were children under 10, and the ship, as on her last two voyages, resembled a floating nursery.

One of the children was the 9-year-old son of British Information (Turn to Page Nine)

Roosevelt Gives Good Imitation of Citizen Only Mildly Interested in Demo Convention

Washington, July 13.—(P)—Being his reputation for eager interest in politics, President Roosevelt today gave a good imitation of a citizen only mildly interested in the Democratic national convention and the ensuing presidential campaign.

While still reserving his decision on a third term nomination, he declared flatly yesterday that he would not go to Chicago during the convention—presumably not even to make an acceptance speech, should that problem arise.

At the same time, he indicated his summer schedule would follow a routine of alternate weekends on the Potomac and in Hyde Park, seemingly ruling out any campaign tours.

As he prepared to start that schedule with a Potomac cruise this weekend, politicians searched his inscrutable but tantalizing remarks for eleventh-hour hints of his intentions.

Some interpreted his summer plans to mean that, if nominated, he would make a "front porch" campaign from the White House and Hyde Park, explaining to the voters that the defense emergency's demands on his time and energy precluded any speaking tours.

Others, however, pointed out that the president's summer schedule would follow a routine of alternate weekends on the Potomac and in Hyde Park, seemingly ruling out any campaign tours.

MICKEY ROONEY AND JUDY GARLAND IN "ANDY HARDY MEETS DEBUTANTE"

Sunday-Monday-Tuesday

The glamour of modern New York shares honors with Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland and the Hardy Family in "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Library Theatre.

Dozens of the sights that thrill visitors to the nation's greatest city are seen in the picture through the eyes of the Hardy Family. The great bridges that have been thrown across the Hudson, the city's mountainous skyline as seen from the Jersey side, the stupendous Rockefeller Center development, New York University's Hall of Fame, swank Fifth Avenue, a dazzling coming-out party which is typical of Manhattan's Four Hundred, the New York Surrogate's Court in which dozens of famous law cases have been fought, all are faithfully shown and make "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" as good as an actual trip to New York.

The story, one of buoyant and sometimes robust comedy spiced with moments of poignant human interest and tense drama, overshadows even the impressive background against which it is played. Mickey, as the lively Andy Hardy, becomes infatuated at long range with New York's prettiest debutante and his attempts to crash her acquaintance put him through a score of hilarious trials and tribulations.

Meanwhile, Lewis Stone, as Judge Hardy, almost meets a crushing defeat in the most important case of his career involving the welfare of the Carvel Orphanage, and wins out finally only with the aid of Andy Hardy as the well-loved "Ma" Hardy.

Judy Garland enters the series for the second time to portray Betsy Booth, the sweet New York miss who befriends Andy in his attempt to meet the debutante.

PENNSYLVANIA GRADE CRUDE IS AGAIN REDUCED

The third cut in the price of Pennsylvania crude oil since May 21 was announced yesterday when all grades were reduced 25 cents a barrel. The new prices were effective yesterday morning.

From a high of $2.75 for Bradford crude, set on January 1, prices dropped to $2.50 on May 22 and to $2.25 on June 18. The present reduction brings the price to $2.00 a barrel. Other grades were reduced accordingly.

The reduction was announced by the South Penn Oil Company and the Tidewater Associated Oil Company. Other purchases, including the Pennzoli Company and the Quaker State Oil Refining Company, following the cut.

The new prices are the same as those paid from March 6 to October 6, 1939. At that time the price trend was upward and the advance continued to the first of the year when a high point was reached.

The same adverse conditions which caused the last two cuts were blamed for yesterday's reduction. The chief reason was said to have been the collapse of the refinery lubricating oil market, due largely to the virtual stoppage of lubricating shipments for export because of the war.

Wellsville, N. Y., July 13.—(AP)

Voluntary reduction in production of Allegheny-Bradford field crude oil in an effort to prevent further price cuts was urged today by Lewis H. Thornton, past president of the New York State Oil Producers' Association.

"It appears to me that if we producers of oil in the Allegheny field want to help hold our rapidly declining market from still-further decline, we had better all curtail our production at once," Thornton observed in a statement after the price was cut to $2 a barrel from its Jan. 1 level of $2.75. It was the third reduction this year.

Thornton said he regards the "great loss of demand" as "more or less temporary" with a "boom" to the Pennsylvania grade crude oil industry likely when the government's warplane expansion program lifts its stride.

Mr. Nemeyer's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Covert, of Warren, are the beneficiaries named above, two sisters, a brother and a niece each receiving a quarter of the residue.

The latter are: Anita Mascheviani, of Trieste, Catagay, the niece; two sisters, Catalina N. de Barchiesi, Estacion Bialek Masse, Argentina, and Agatha N. de Churard, Estacion Carcarana, Argentina; a brother, Carlos Neumayer, Argentina.

Mr. Covert and the Warren National Bank were named executors.

On the new Pennsylvania turnpike, no highway is permitted to cross at a grade. There will be 160 over-passes and under-passes to carry crossroads over and under the pike.

HOLLYWOOD — If anybody's thinking about laying out a new college campus, here's the place to come. I never knew how a campus should be laid out until I saw the set of "Too Many Girls," which offers the buildings and grounds of dear old Pottawatomie University, mythically located at Stopgap, New Mexico (a town which also ain't).

The set will offer more ideas, of course, if the youthful campus cuties are decorating its environs and parading solemnly through its stately halls of learning. I can't guarantee any solemn academic parades, however, for come to think of it there isn't a hall of learning in sight. This too is an idea for campus layer-outers.

WHAT strikes you first about dear old Pottawatomie is the way they've provided for dance routines. Take that pueblo-type adobe home of the college president. There's a balcony on the second story and you reach it by two wide flights of stairs, where on the coeds and eds can—and do—practice their steps. In the patio in front there's a big sundial, like half a drum, on which you know Hal Leroy and Ann Miller are going to tap a conga. You're right, because that's what they're doing now. They and the other kids are warming up, in the prexy's patio, to the strains of a rhumba orchestra which plays that hot bit called "Give It Back to the Indians."

The professor over there, the tall, distinguished gent in the sweater, is George Abbott, sometime of Broadway, who is taking a fling at movie-making. The associate professor, stocky and dark, is Leroy. And, well, you know dancing. Between Abbott's direction and Prinz's dance direction the kids never get a peek at their books. But they get the essentials of a college education: Swing, hot rhythm, rhumba and conga and song.

Campuses need walks and stairways to swing and tap on. Sundials for steps. And—of course—youth.

"Too Many Girls" has all that. Youngsters so young they make an old man feel older. So active, practicing taps and jitterbug stuff even when they could be resting, they wear you down. (I called for my cane and decided to grow a beard, long and white, after Ann Miller asked if I'd heard of the conga and had ever seen it. She was very sweet about it, to be sure, and respectful—as any child of 19 would be to a patriarch of the Schottische and Polka era.)

THREE of the principles—Ann and Lucille Ball and Richard Carlson—weren't in Abbott's stage production. Most of the others were, including Desi Arnaz, the Cuban youth whose rhumba and tango have the local girls dithering.

Hal Leroy, the dancer, is making a come-back to films. He was in "Harold Teen" at Warner's some years ago. Another come-backer is Ann Miller—to the same studio she left, after getting nowhere in particular, for the stage. She was a hit in George White's "Scandals" and on opening night she had five movie offers. Which goes to show why local girls like Broadway.

During the first four months of 1940, there was a total of 8390 traffic deaths in the United States. This is a 6 per cent increase over

What Do You Know About POLITICS?

1. Name this U. S. Associate Justice and tell how he figures in Democratic National Convention plans.
2. True or false: The Monroe Doctrine is the popular name of a law concerning U. S. territorial rights, passed by Congress in 1823.
3. How many ballots were needed to nominate FDR in 1932? In 1936?
4. Who said: "There is only one man in the Democratic party who can take the nomination for President of that party in this year and defeat Mr. Wilkie, and that man is a Senator from Montana, Burton K. Wheeler?"
5. Of 531 electoral votes in the 1936 presidential election, how many did the Republicans obtain? 24? 15? 36? 8? 2? 12?

Each full question counts 20. A score of 80 is good.

PENNSYLVANIA GRADE CRUDE IS AGAIN REDUCED

The third cut in the price of Pennsylvania grade oil since May 21 was announced yesterday when all grades were reduced 25 cents a barrel. The new prices were effective yesterday morning.

From a high of $2.75 for Bradford crude, set on January 1, prices dropped to $2.50 on May 22 and to $2.25 on June 18. The present reduction brings the price to $2.00 a barrel. Other grades were reduced accordingly.

The reduction was announced by the South Penn Oil Company and the Tidewater Associated Oil Company. Other purchases, including the Pennell Company and the Quaker State Oil Refining Company, following the cut.

The new prices are the same as those paid from March 6 to October 6, 1939. At that time the price trend was upward and the advance continued to the first of the year when a high point was reached.

The same adverse conditions which caused the last two cuts were blamed for yesterday's reduction. The chief reason was said to have been the collapse of the refinery lubricating oil market, due largely to the virtual stoppage of lubricating shipments for export because of the war.

Wellsville, N. Y., July 13—(P.)

Voluntary reduction in production of Allegheny-Bradford field crude oil in an effort to prevent further price cuts was urged today by Lewis H. Thornton, past president of the New York State Oil Producers' Association.

"It appears to me that if we producers of oil in the Allegheny field want to help hold our rapidly declining market from still-further decline, we had better all curtail our production at once," Thornton observed in a statement after the price was cut to $2 a barrel from its Jan. 1 level of $2.75. It was the third reduction this year.

Thornton said he regards the "great loss of demand" as "more or less temporary" with a "boom in the Pennsylvania grade crude oil industry" likely when the government's warplane expansion program hits its stride.

Mr. Nemoyer's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Covert, of Warren, are the beneficiaries named above, two sisters, a brother and a niece each receiving a quarter of the residue.

The latter are: Anita Maschevanti, of Itrube, Paraguay, the niece; two sisters, Catalina N. de Barciassi, Estacion Bialel Masse, Argentina, and Agatha N. de Churina, Estacion Carcarana, Argentina; a brother, Carlos Neumayer, Argentina.

Mr. Covert and the Warren National Bank were named executors.

On the new Pennsylvania turnpike, no highway is permitted to cross at a grade. There will be 160 over-passes and under-passes to carry crossroads over and under the pike.

HOLLYWOOD — If anybody's thinking about laying out a new college campus, here's the place to come.

I never knew how a campus should be laid out until I saw the set of "Too Many Girls," which offers the buildings and grounds of dear old Pottawatomie University, mythically located at Stopgap, New Mexico (a town which also ain't).

The set will offer more ideas, of course, if the youthful campus cuties are decorating its environs and parading solemnly through its stately halls of learning. I can't guarantee any solemn academic parades, however, for come to think of it there isn't a hall of learning in sight. This too is an idea for campus layer-outers.

WHAT strikes you first about dear old Pottawatomie is the way they've provided for dance routines. Take that pueblo-type adobe home of the college president. There's a balcony on the second story and you reach it by two wide flights of stairs, whereon the coeds and eds can—do—practice their steps. In the patio in front there's a big sundial, like half a drum on which you know Hal Leroy and Ann Miller are going to tap a conga. You're right, because that's what they're doing now. They and the other kids are warming up, in the prexy's patio, to the strains of a rumba orchestra which plays that hot bit called "Give It Back to the Indians."

The professor over there, the tall, distinguished gent in a sweater, is George Abbott, sometime of Broadway, who's taking a fling at movie-making. The associate professor, stocky and dark, is Leroy Prinz, whose course is dancing. Between Abbott's direction and Prinz's dance direction the kids never get a peek at their books. But they get the essentials of a college education: Swing, hot rhythm, rumba and Conga and song.

Campuses need walks and stairways to swing and tap on. Sundials for steps. And—of course—youth.

"Too Many Girls" has all that. Youngsters so young they make an old man feel older. So active, practicing taps and jitterbug stuff even when they could be resting, they wear you down. Another called for my cane and decided to grow a beard, long and white, after Ann Miller asked if I'd heard of the Conga and had ever seen it. She was very sweet about it, to be sure, and respectful—as any child of 19 would be to a patriarch of the Schottische and Polka era.)

Hal Leroy, the dancer, is making a come-back to films. He was in "Harold Teen" at Warner's some years ago. Another comebacker is Ann Miller to the same studio she left, after getting nowhere in particular, for the stage. She was a hit in George White's "Scandals" and on opening night she had five movie offers. Which goes to show why local girls like Broadway.

During the first four months of 1940, there was a total of 9390 traffic deaths in the United States. This is a 6 per cent increase over the same period of 1939.

YESTERDAY: Sandra comes to Kay's room for a private talk with Jeff. She wants to marry him immediately. Gerald suggests to Kay that a wife cannot testify against her husband.

Chapter 18

Definitely Murder

SANDRA'S eyes were unnaturally bright and her cheeks were crimson—not, I thought, with rouge. She wasn't just the idea of the radiant bride—she was more feverish than radiant, more excited than happy, more determined than eager. But while I never for a moment doubted that she was getting what she wanted—she had the air of achieving a long-felt purpose—I could not reconcile that air with the swollen eyes and twisting hands of the girl I had admitted to my room only an hour before—a girl who had lost her lover and was wracked with grief. That Sandra was genuine.

Her tortured words came back to me.

"They made fun of him. They're glad. They thought he wasn't good enough."

And now all that forgotten in feverish triumph. Or was it forgotten? Wasn't there a quality of malevolence, of vindictiveness in her excitement? Was she, in some way I could not imagine, planning to avenge Ivan's death?

I am altogether too imaginative, a fact which is always being pointed out to me. I mentally shook off a chill of foreboding which I knew was nothing but an Irish ancestor hanging crepe, but I could not shake a reasonable question which kept asking itself of me. Why was she marrying Jeff?

"Sandra," I said, without premeditation—if I had thought twice I might have kept silent—"have you considered that people will say you are marrying Jeff to keep from testifying—because you think—"

For some reason I was unable to finish; and it was not necessary. I saw. She understood what I meant and it was not a new idea to her.

"I've thought of that," she said patiently, as if explaining to a backward child. "But I'm doing what I think best."

Her eyes met mine perfectly steadily, but without candor. She was not rebuffing me; but on the other hand she was making me no present of her thoughts.

I gave up. After all, it was no business of mine.

It was a Sunday I shall not forget.

Sandra made no move to go. She curled up in a chair and, like a well-behaved guest, turned the pages of magazines. The sound, repeated too often to permit her to do any reading, so annoyed me that all I could do was sit and decide that I'd better be going back to Chicago where the roar of the el seemed to have no tendency to derail my train of thought, and where I could get some work done before I had to break out my safety fund and start spitting it. Here I was again, mixed up in murder.

I quit listening to the annoying rasp of the turning leaves and wondered why I thought it was murder. I remembered that Gerald had so referred to it and that I had not challenged his assumption. I wondered now if he knew or was only guessing. And if he knew, how?

After the discovery of the body the night before, Adam had sent Gerald to take us home from the barge for the last time and to bring back help. Adam had stayed there, keeping a lonely vigil and I had not seen him since. What I discovered had they made down in that horrid black hole—what clues to murder—and to a murderer?

'Very Painful'

FELICIA rapped twice and knocked the door. She was dressed in a hat and gloves, and looked moderately devout.

"Going to church," she announced self-righteously.

"Where, in town?" I asked, and she said no, the chapel.

"Services announced for today. Want to come?"

Sandra said "Yes," eagerly, before I had time to reply. "If Katherine will lend me a hat and gloves."

I said that I would lend them gladly, and I meant it. I was in one of those moods when I felt there was a conspiracy to keep me from doing any work and that if I persisted I might as well cut my throat before I starved to death. A mood common, I dare say, to most writers.

While I sought out the required articles Felicia was expressing her sympathy to Sandra. It was a rotten way, she said, to lose an old friend.

"Yes," said Sandra. "Very painful."

She said it quite steadily, and I began to wonder if I had imagined the grief-tortured face she had brought to my door.

Thankfully I watched her depart. Now I could work. But first I ought to see Julia. After all, it was Sunday, a day of duty. And I didn't ought to see Julia.

Because it was Sunday I had dressed with care. I would not

'What For?' Asks Charlotte of Foster Dad's Nomination

By RICHARD SYRING
NEA Service Special Correspondent

Salem, Ore., July 13.—The Republican party may have nominated her Daddy for vice president, but 5-year-old Charlotte McNary is totally unimpressed.

"What for?" she asked, worried, when the news was told her by an excited mother in a Salem grocery store. She still doesn't understand what it's all about. Mrs. McNary was shopping when a grocery clerk told her "Charley Mac" had been nominated.

Charlotte was adopted when only a few months old. The McNarys kept her parents' identity a guarded secret. She's their daughter now, and that's enough.

She was a wee baby when she first arrived in Oregon with a colored mammy and the McNarys. Each summer people in Salem wait for Charlotte to "come home" with her parents. This year they were amazed at the way she had grown.

Unannounced, Charlotte and her mother arrived at the senator's beloved "Pirone," his 200-acre farm, five miles from here, just a few days before the Republican convention began. The senator will probably accept the nomination at the ranch "if they promise not to trample down too many trees."

The farm is part of the senator's grandfather's donation land claim. He knows every inch of the well-kept alfalfa, walnut, cherry and plum orchards, and he loves it. So does Charlotte.

The only restriction is the afternoon nap. Other than that, she's footloose and fancy free, climbing over hillsides, paddling in the large pond near the house.

There's only one thing she wants now—she wishes her Daddy would come home.

Charlotte McNary

"I've thought of that," she said patiently, as one explaining to a backward child. "But I'm doing what I think best."

Her eyes met mine perfectly steadily, but without candor. She was not rebuffing me; but on the other hand she was making me no present of her thoughts. I gave up. After all, it was no business of mine. It was a Sunday I shall not forget.

Sandra made no move to go. She curled up in a chair and, like a well-behaved guest, turned the pages of magazines. The sound, repeated too often to permit her to do any reading, so annoyed me that all I could do was sit and glower at my typewriter and decide that I'd better be going back to Chicago where the roar of the el seemed to have no tendency to derail my train of thought, and where I could get some work done before I had to break out my safety fund and start spending it. Here I was again, mixed up in murder—

I quit listening to the annoying rasp of the turning leaves and wondered why I thought it was murder. I remembered that Gerald had so referred to it and that I had not challenged his assumption. I wondered now if he knew or was only guessing. And if he knew, how?

After the discovery of the body the night before, Adam had sent Gerald to take us home from the barge for the last time and to bring back help. Adam had stayed there, keeping a lonely vigil, and I had not seen him since. What discoveries had they made down in that horrid black hole—what clues to murder—and to a murderer?

Very Painful

FELICIA rapped twice and opened the door. She was dressed, hatted and gloved, and looked moderately devoted to "going to church," she announced self-righteously.

"Where, in town?" I asked, and she said no, the chapel.

"Services announced for today. Want to come?" Sandra said "Yes," eagerly, before I had time to reply. "If Katherine will lend me a hat and gloves."

I said that I would lend them gladly, and I meant it. I was in one of those moods when I felt there was a conspiracy to keep me from doing any work and that if I persisted I might as well cut my throat before I starved to death. A mood common, I dare say, to most writers.

While I sought out the required articles Felicia was expressing her sympathy to Sandra. It was a rotten way, she said, to lose an old friend.

"Yes," said Sandra. "Very painful." She said it quite steadily, and I began to wonder if I had imagined the grief-tortured face she had brought to my door.

Thankfully I watched her depart. Now I could work. But first I ought to see Julia. After all, it was Sunday, a day of rest. And I really ought to see Julia.

Because it was Sunday I had dressed with care; I would not need to change. I fixed my hair and my face briefly, feeling a sudden urgency, and set out along Officers' Row at a brisk walk.

There were two cars in front of the colonel's quarters. One of them was Adam's, and at sight of it I hesitated, wondering if he would think I was forcing my way into matters that did not concern me. But the other car—a police car from the neighboring town—decided me. I had to see Julia.

Sulky black Cora answered the doorbell and grudgingly admitted me. She would see if Miss Julia was home. She went upstairs muttering about morning callers and Sunday dinners. I waited in the hall, hearing men's voices indistinctly beyond a closed door and trying, with a horrible sense of guilt, not to know that something was scorching in the kitchen.

Cora must have gone down the back stairs—hurriedly, no doubt—for I did not see her again. Instead, Julia came to the landing in a tailored satin robe the shade of a red peony and beckoned me with gestures warning silence.

"Well go to my room," she whispered as I reached her, and led me, feathered mules hurrying along the oriental runner, to a room at the end of the hall—a neat room of Quaker simplicity, furnished in early American maple, with two brown hooked rugs on the floor, a white candlewick spread on the poster bed, tailored yellow curtains at the windows and two framed photographs on the plain, cream-colored walls.

The pictured woman must have been Julia's mother—a woman in wartime fashions—a woman of that same strange, salty ugliness but with a light of great happiness in her eyes such as I had not seen in Julia's.

The other picture was of Jeff, in cadet uniform. And his eyes, too, surprised me. Though it must have been taken no more than two or three years before, he looked much younger, much more trusting. I thought of a dog who had lost a good home and found that the world is not all cracked marrow bones and an easy chair by the fire.

Driftwood

JULIA said, in a voice pitched very low, "You haven't told anyone what we saw on the barge."

"Of course not. That's what I came to warn you about. . . . How do you know it was murder?" She motioned me to a low slipper chair and, dropping down on a rug at my feet, leaned back against a pine chest.

"I listened at the landing before they shut the library door. When they moved him—the body—there was a stick of driftwood under it. The stick was still pretty dry, especially the part he was lying on. And there was blood and hair on it from a wound on the back of his head."

"So they think someone hit him over the head and pushed him in? I don't see why he couldn't have fallen in and struck his head on the stick—it may have already been in the water."

"No, because it wasn't wet enough, or something. I don't know just how they know, but they do; it was murder, all right."

We stared at each other, and I saw dread in her eyes.

"I wonder if Sandra knows that," I said, thinking out loud. "How could she? She's still asleep."

"You mean to say you haven't missed her?" Julia looked shocked, so I told her of Sandra's early call, of her interview with Jeff, and of the construction Gerald had put upon it.

Julia's face was flushed when I finished. "She can't do that to him," she said angrily. "I'll tell her she can't."

I felt bound to point out to her something which had just occurred to me—belatedly.

"There's a chance she may be right. Maybe she does know something she's rather not forced to tell. About Jeff."

"That's the same as saying you think he murdered that—that screwball," Julia retorted with heat. "It's what everyone will think. I'll talk to her—I'll show her what she's doing to him."

She paused, looked suddenly tired. "I suppose they'll both think I'm jealous," she added bitterly. "Where is Sandra?"

In church, I told her. She stood up and dropped the cerise robe at her feet and stood, high-breasted and proud in a belted white georgette gown. For a moment she might have posed for a Red Cross poster, or something equally noble and self-sacrificing. Then a wry grin twisted her face.

"All-right," she said. "I am jealous. So what? Let them think what they please. People aren't going to have a chance to say things like that about Jeff if I can help it."

She swirled the gown over her head and dropped it to the floor with an expression of defiant disdain.

I watched her dress and told her that it wasn't any use, that I had tried, that no appeal on behalf of Jeff would move Sandra because it was Ivan she had loved; Julia dismissed that with a little frown.

'What For?' Asks Charlotte of Foster Dad's Nomination

By RICHARD SYRING
NEA Service Special Correspondent

Salem, Ore., July 13.—The Republican party may have nominated her Daddy for vice president, but 5-year-old Charlotte McNary is totally unimpressed.

"What for?" she asked, worried, when the news was told her by an excited mother in a Salem grocery store. She still doesn't understand what it's all about. Mrs. McNary was shopping.

Charlotte was adopted when only a few months old. The McNarys kept her parents' identity a guarded secret. She's their daughter now, and that's enough.

She was a wee baby when she first arrived in Oregon with a colored mammy and the McNarys. Each summer people in Salem wait for Charlotte to "come home" with her parents. This year they were amazed at the way she had grown.

Unannounced, Charlotte and her mother arrived at the senator's beloved "Fircone," his 200-acre farm, five miles from here, just a few days before the Republican convention began. The senator will probably accept the nomination at the ranch "if they promise not to trample down too many trees."

The farm is part of the senator's grandfather's donation land claim. He knows every inch of the well-kept filbert, walnut, cherry and prune orchards, and he loves it. So does Charlotte.

The only restriction is the afternoon nap. Other than that, she's footloose and fancy free, climbing over hillsides, paddling in the large pond near the house.

There's only one thing she wants now—she wishes her Daddy would come home.

Charlotte McNary

SPIRITUAL NEEDS

It means something when the president of the National Association of Manufacturers comes to town and tells a great banquet hall full of hard-boiled businessmen that America needs a spiritual revival which will take us back to the great, underlying verities by which our fathers lived and for which some of them died.

H. W. Prentiss is not a religious fanatic. He doesn't intend to be "preaching" when he brings this message to American business. But he is sounding a note which ought to challenge every pulpit in the land.

If business knows that "the things which are not seen are eternal," the servants of eternity will do well to come alive to a situation which is not without its implications of grave danger to all that Americans ought to cherish.

CHAPTER HARD TO MATCH

Often it has been said that truth is stranger than fiction, and it may be so. Certainly the arrival at Nassau, Bahamas, of the man who was once King-Emperor of the world's most expansive empire will be a chapter hard to match, even in a living story already almost beyond belief.

"The Tempest" is one of Shakespeare's most fanciful plays, but even Prospero's account of his vicissitudes pales somewhat before today's drama:

"... I am Prospero and that very duke
Which was thrust forth of Milan, who most strangely
Upon this shore, where you were wrecked, was landed,
To be the lord on it."
"This cell's my court; here have I few attendants
And subjects none abroad..."

So, to a little group of 20 inhabited and scores of tinier uninhabited islands now comes the Duke of Windsor "to be the lord on it," bringing with him "the woman
I love." All around him is another Tempest, that of war, as he plays out this latest little act in a drama which assures us that not the wildest flights of Shakespeare's fancy were too improbable for such a world.

WEEKLY SERMONETTE

"Believing in the Strength of Faith"

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of Advance

Text: Job 42:1-13.
We have seen Job in the depth of doubt, distressed by the intensity of his disasters and sufferings, more distressed than helped by the placating and futile counsel of his friends who are incapable of appreciating the depth and nature of his troubles, and tempted by the whole situation to "curse God and die."

Here in this lesson we see him emerging from his troubles and his doubts into the strength of faith. His faith is so strong that now, instead of cursing God and dying, he feels that he can trust God even though He should slay him.

It should be noted that it was faith that Job attained. He did not find a solution of the problem of suffering, and no one has found a solution. It is a great mystery that still goes unsolved. Jesus went to Calvary, praying earnestly that He might be spared the Cross, but He also found in the hour of Gethsemane the faith that sustained Him and that enabled Him to believe that in His sufferings and death He was fulfilling the will of an all-wise Father and His purposes of redemption.

All this is greatly at variance with the popular idea of doubt. The common notion is that we should suppress it, that we should not allow any questioning to enter our minds concerning God and His Providence.
But the book of Job and many other parts of the Bible speak differently.
They suggest that we should face the problems of life earnestly and sincerely, and that if we do thus face them we shall come not to a conventional belief that has little reality, but that we shall come to real faith.

All this has never been more finely expressed in modern times than in Tennyson's great poem, "In Memoriam," which has sometimes been called "A Modern Book of Job." Tennyson wrote this poem, deeply moved by the death of his friend Arthur Henry Hallam. In one section he is replying to someone who has expressed the conventional idea that "doubt is Devil-born." In this he says:

I know not: one indeed I knew
In many a subtle question versed,
Who touch'd a jarring lyre at first,
But never strove to make it true;
Perplexed in faith, but pure in deeds,
At last he beat his music out.
There lives more faith in honest doubt,
Believe me, than in half the creeds.

He fought his doubts and gathered strength,
He would not make his judgment blind,
He faced the spectres of the mind
And laid them; thus he came at length

To find a stronger faith his own,
And Power was with him in the night,
Which makes the darkness and the light,
And dwells not in the light alone.

As Job comes to faith and finds the approval of Jehovah, his triumph is in contrast with the discomfort of his plausible friends who had tried to cheer him with weak and superficial words and who in their shallow pretense of faith had rebuked him for his doubts. The wrath of Jehovah is kindled against them because they had not spoken of Him the thing that was right.

We may well pray for a sustaining faith like Job's and seek it instead of being satisfied with the plausible platitudes of those who have never cried to God out of the depths or found His answer.

JOHN L. NO LIKE THIRD TERM, BUT HIGH UNIFORM OFFICIALS APPEAR IN CHICAGO AS ARD- ENT THIRD TERM BOOSTERS

Chicago, July 13.—John L. Lewis is being outpulled in the tug of war within the C. I. O.

First visible sign is appearance at the Democratic convention here in Chicago, as ardent third-term boosters, of some of the C. I. O.'s most important officials. Among these are Philip Murray, C. I. O.
vice president, and Thomas J.
Kennedy, secretary of the United Mine Workers who are delegates from Pennsylvania, and R. J.
Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers, a delegate from Michigan.

Significance lies in the fact that Lewis has been bitterly and openly opposed to Roosevelt's renomination for many months.

Even more important is the way
Lewis is being short-circuited in the matter of a "rapprochement" between the C. I. O. and the A. F.

When President Roosevelt put
C. I. O. Vice President Sidney
Hillman on the National Defense Committee, the way was paved for an effective C. I. O.-A. F. of L. cooperation which, conceivably, might finally heal the breach between the two labor organizations
... by next fall, say, after the presidential election.

Hillman, whose split with Lewis came partly because he wanted to make such a peace while Lewis didn't, proceeded to set up a National Labor Policy Advisory Committee, composed of representatives of the A. F. of L., C. I. O. and the railway brotherhoods. It's this committee's job to smooth out jurisdictional fights and in general to see to it that the A. F.

of L.-C. I. O. split doesn't get in the way of the defense program.

Notable is the fact that the
C. I. O. men put on this committee are leaders who have opposed Lewis of late, both on the third term issue and also on the matter of ridding the C. I. O. of Communist influence—real or alleged.
These men are:

Emil Rieve, of the Textile Workers; Sherman Dalrymple, of the Rubber Workers; R. J. Thomas, of the Auto Workers; Van Bittner, of the United Mine Workers; and Chester S. Golden, of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee.

There is no longer any suspicion of Communist domination of any of their unions. On the other hand, some prominent C. I. O.
unions which are commonly supposed to be under Communist influence were pointed left unrepresented on Hillman's committee.

Along with all of this—which tends to draw an important section of the C. I. O. farther and farther away from Lewis—there is the recent resignation of E. L.
Oliver as boss of Labor's Non-Partisan League, and his appointment as head of the American Labor Party in New York.

This league was formed originally as the means by which Lewis-led labor could work for Roosevelt. Oliver quit because he felt the league was tending to follow the Communist party line instead of the New Deal. But while his resignation leaves Oliver in full control of the league, Oliver is the man who has the intimate contact with labor leaders in the league's various local branches... and it would not be surprising if a number of these presently followed him out of the league—perhaps into some as yet unannounced extension of the American Labor Party, perhaps simply into an independent labor committee for Roosevelt.

STAMP NEWS

ISSUANCE of special U. S. National Defense and Red Cross stamps has been suggested to the Postoffice Department but no official response has been received on the proposal. United States has never issued semi-postals.

Proponents of the National Defense issue urged that a 1-cent stamp, without franking value, be made compulsory on all mail, to raise funds for the defense program. The Red Cross stamp, with 3-cent postage value, would be sold at 5 cents, profits to be devoted to that organization.

A spray of plum blossoms, symbolizing communications, decorates Japan's latest stamp issue.
The design is from an ancient box in the Imperial Household museum.

Hungary has issued two new values for food relief. The design

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — Answering
the mail orders:

Mrs. J. T. K., Indianapolis
—In spite of all those stories
you have read, the United States fleet still is in the far Pacific and is likely to remain there unless some drastic change occurs in Atlantic defense conditions.

G. T. Rutherford, N. J.—Your old friend and brother in the bond Jimmy Aswell, is out for the congressional race in Natchi-toches, La., and it looks at this printing as though he would be around these parts soon after the first of the year. He was one of the principal platform ramrods in the fight against the old (and defeated) Long machine. Since then the winds that drift up from the southland have been bringing me consistent reports of Jimmy's candidacy. If Jimmy comes up this way after the first of the year, guess we'll have to have a get-together and talk of the time you wrote a glowing column about what a swell guy Jimmy Aswell is and some South Carolina editor (or was it Virginia) got confused and ran it under a head that said "By James Aswell." They tell me Jimmy still keeps the Pullman shades down when he goes through that city.

H. M. L., Dallas, Tex.—Your query about all that gold that's stuck in a hole down in Kentucky not only has your humble correspondent guessing, but all the best economists and money theorists around here as well. I'm trying to find out, but it's beginning to look as though I'll have to get a Ph. D., a thesaurus and couple of Morgan partners on my side before I can even discuss it
... And even then I'll have to write above the column: The facts contained herein bear no resemblance to anything living or dead.

G. P., San Diego, Calif.—Based on the 1936 popular vote, Wendell L. Willkie would have to swing a little more than 5,000,000 votes that went for Roosevelt and hold the 17,000,000 votes considered Republican under any circumstances. The sidling guessers here now are saying that Mr.

Willkie probably will get a lot of normally Democratic votes (being so recently a Democrat himself), but for that very reason probably will lose some of the ordinarily die-hard Republicans.
Personally, I think it's a little too early to tell about any of these supposed trends. The political picture, based as it is almost entirely on the foreign situation plus the shifting whim of the American voter, can change a half dozen times between now and November ... but it is anybody's guess at the moment as to what it is going to change from.

R. E. B., Joplin, Mo.—Thanks for the tip on the Admiral Dewey report at the navy department.
The department generously is working on it for me and if I uncover any more minor or major prophecies on modern warfare, will be sure to let you know.

Mrs. D. C. L., Denver, Colo.—I think I can assure you that the government is not devoting ALL its time to rearmament and overlooking the possibilities of the trade war which may result when the European battles are over. My hunch is that the first big hint of how much time is being devoted to it will come out of the Pan-American conference at Havana.

Because trade wars have no
roots in strutting and braggadocio, our economic plans are a good deal more secret than our armament aims. Traders have to be sly, but when it comes to putting on armor, all nations act like little boys and throw out their chests and say: "Just look how strong I am. If you touch me, I'll punch your middle clear back to your spine."

SPIRITUAL NEEDS

It means something when the president of the National Association of Manufacturers comes to town and tells a great banquet hall full of hard-boiled businessmen that America needs a spiritual revival which will take us back to the great, underlying verities by which our fathers lived and for which some of them died.

H. W. Prentiss is not a religious fanatic. He doesn't intend to be "preaching" when he brings this message to American business. But he is sounding a note which ought to challenge every pulpit in the land.

If business knows that "the things which are not seen are eternal," the servants of eternity will do well to come alive to a situation which is not without its implications of grave danger to all that Americans ought to cherish.

CHAPTER HARD TO MATCH

Often it has been said that truth is stranger than fiction, and it may be so. Certainly the arrival at Nassau, Bahamas, of the man who was once King-Emperor of the world's most expansive empire will be a chapter hard to match, even in a living story already almost beyond belief.

"The Tempest" is one of Shakespeare's most fanciful plays, but even Prospero's account of his vicissitudes pales somewhat before today's drama:

"... I am Prospero and that very duke
Which was thrust forth of Milan, who most strangely
Upon this shore, where you were wrecked, was landed,
To be the lord on it."
"This cell's my court; here have I few attendants
And subjects none abroad."

So, to a little group of 20 inhabited and scores of tinier uninhabited islands now comes the Duke of Windsor "to be the lord on it," bringing with him "the woman I love." All around him is another Tempest, that of war, as he plays out this latest little act in a drama which assures us that not the wildest flights of Shakespeare's fancy were too improbable for such a world.

WEEKLY SERMONETTE

"Believing in the Strength of Faith"

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of Advance

Text: Job 42:1-13.

We have seen Job in the depth of doubt, distressed by the intensity of his disasters and sufferings, more distressed than helped by the complacent and futile counsel of his friends who are incapable of appreciating the depth and nature of his troubles, and tempted by the whole situation to "curse God and die."

Here in this lesson we see him emerging from his troubles and his doubts into the strength of faith. His faith is so strong that now, instead of cursing God and dying, he feels that he can trust God even though He should slay him.

It should be noted that it was faith that Job attained. He did not find a solution of the problem of suffering, and no one has found a solution. It is a great mystery that still goes unsolved. Jesus went to Calvary, praying earnestly that He might be spared the Cross, but He also found in the hour of Gethsemane the faith that sustained Him and that enabled Him to believe that in His sufferings and death He was fulfilling the will of an all-wise Father and His purposes of redemption.

All this is greatly at variance with the popular idea of doubt. The common notion is that we should suppress it, that we should not allow any questioning to enter our minds concerning God and His Providence. But the book of Job and many other parts of the Bible speak differently. They suggest that we should face the problems of life earnestly and sincerely, and that if we do so, we shall come to a conviction of belief that has little reality, but that we shall come to real faith.

All this has never been more finely expressed in modern times than in Tennyson's great poem, In Memoriam, which has sometimes been called "A Modern Book of Job." Tennyson wrote this poem, deeply moved by the death of his friend Arthur Henry Hallam. In one section he is replying to someone who has expressed the conventional idea that "doubt is Devil-born." In this he says:

I know not: one indeed I knew
In many a subtle question versed,
Who touch'd a jarring lyre at first
But never strove to make it true;

Perplex'd in faith, but pure in deeds,
At last he beat his music out,
There lives more faith in honest doubt,
Believe me, than in half the creeds.

He fought his doubts and gathered strength
He would not make his judgment blind,
He faced the spectres of the mind
And laid them, thus he came at length

To find a stronger faith his own.
And Power was with him in the night,
Which makes the darkness and the light,
And dwells not in the light alone.

As Job comes to faith and finds the approval of Jehovah his triumph is in contrast with the discomfort of his plausible friends who had tried to cheer him with weak and superficial words and who in their shallow pretense of faith had rebuked him for his doubts. The wrath of Jehovah is kindled against them because they had not spoken of Him the thing that was right.

We may well pray for a sustaining faith like Job's and seek it instead of being satisfied with the plausible platitudes of those who have never cried to God out of the depths or found His answer.

JOHN L. NO LIKE THIRD TERM, BUT HIGH UNION OFFICIALS, APPEAR IN CHICAGO AS ARDENT THIRD TERM BOOSTERS

Chicago, July 13.—John L. Lewis is being outpulled in the tug of war within the C. I. O.

First visible sign is appearance at the Democratic convention here in Chicago, as ardent third-term boosters, of some of the C. I. O.'s most important officials. Among these are Philip Murray, C. I. O. vice president, and Thomas J. Kennedy, secretary of the United Mine Workers who are delegates from Pennsylvania, and R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers, a delegate from Michigan.

Significance lies in the fact that Lewis has been bitterly and openly opposed to Roosevelt's renomination for many months. The matter of a "rapprochement" between the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L.

When President Roosevelt put C. I. O. Vice President Sidney Hillman on the National Defense Committee, the way was paved for an effective C. I. O.-A. F. of L. cooperation which, conceivably, might finally heal the breach between the two labor organizations... by next fall, say, after the presidential election.

Hillman, whose split with Lewis came partly because he wanted to make such a peace while Lewis didn't, proceeded to set up a National Labor Policy Advisory Committee, composed of representatives of the A. F. of L., C. I. O. and the railway brotherhoods. It's this committee's job to smooth out jurisdictional fights and in general to see to it that the A. F. of L.-C. I. O. split doesn't get in the way of the defense program.

Notable is the fact that the C. I. O. men put on this committee are leaders who have opposed Lewis of late, both on the third term issue and also on the matter of riding the C. I. O. of Communist influence—real or alleged.

These men are: Emil Rieve, of the Textile Workers; Sherman Dalrymple, of the Rubber Workers; R. J. Thomas, of the Auto Workers; Van Bittner, of the United Mine Workers; and Chester S. Golden, of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee.

There is no longer any suspicion of Communist domination of any of their unions. On the other hand, some prominent C. I. O. unions which are commonly supposed to be under Communist influence were pointedly left unrepresented on Hillman's committee.

Along with all of this which tends to draw an important section of the C. I. O. farther and farther away from Lewis—there is the recent resignation of E. L. Oliver as boss of Labor's Non-Partisan League, and his appointment as head of the American Labor Party in New York.

This league was formed originally as the means by which Lewis-led labor could work for Roosevelt. Oliver quit because he felt the league was tending to follow the Communist party line instead of the New Deal. But while his resignation leaves Lewis in full control of the league, Oliver is the man who has the intimate contact with labor leaders in the league's various local branches... and it would not be surprising if a number of these presently followed him out of the league—perhaps into some as yet unannounced extension of the American Labor Party, perhaps simply into an independent labor committee for Roosevelt.

STAMP NEWS

ISSUANCE of special U. S. National Defense and Red Cross stamps has been suggested to the Postoffice Department but no official response has been received on the proposal. United States has never issued semi-postals.

Proponents of the National Defense issue urged that a 1-cent stamp, without franking value, be made compulsory on all mail, to raise funds for the defense program. The Red Cross stamp, with 3-cent postage value, would be sold at 5 cents, profits to be devoted to that organization.

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — Answering the mail orders:

Mrs. J. T. K., Indianapolis —In spite of all those stories you have read, the United States fleet still is in the far Pacific and is likely to remain there unless some drastic change occurs in Atlantic defense conditions.

G. T. Rutherford, N. J.—Your old friend and brother in the bond, Jimmy Aswell, is out for the congressional race in Natchitoches, La., and it looks at this printing as though he would be around these parts soon after the first of the year. He was one of the principal platform ramrods in the fight against the old (and defeated) Long machine. Since then the winds that drift up from the southland have been bringing me consistent reports of Jimmy's candidacy. If Jimmy comes up this way after the first of the year, guess we'll have to have a get-together and talk of the time you wrote a glowing column about what a swell guy Jimmy Aswell is and some South Carolina editor (or was it Virginia) got confused and ran it under a head that said "By James Aswell." They tell me Jimmy still keeps the Pullman shades down when he goes through that city.

H. M. L., Dallas, Tex.—Your query about all that gold that's stuck in a hole down in Kentucky not only has your humble correspondent guessing, but all the best economists and money theorists around here as well. I'm trying to find out, but it's beginning to look as though I'll have to get a Ph. D. a thesaurus and couple of Morgan partners on my side before I can even discuss it. And even then I'll have to write above the column: The facts contained herein bear no resemblance to anything living or dead.

G. P., San Diego, Calif.—Based

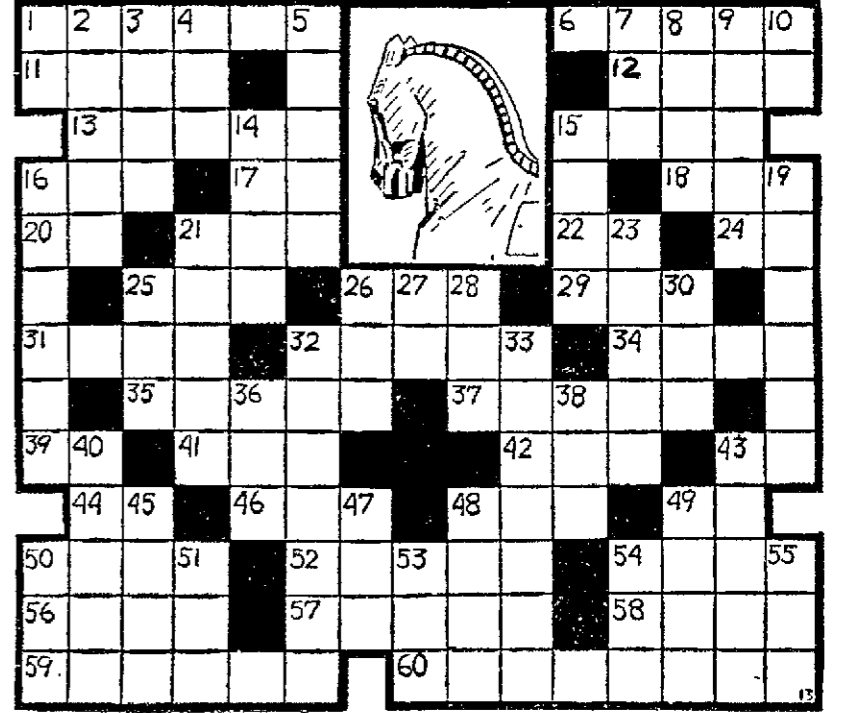

on the 1936 popular vote, Wendell L. Willkie would have to swing a little more than 5,000,000 votes that went for Roosevelt and hold the 17,000,000 votes considered Republican under any circumstances. The sideline guessers here now are saying that Mr. Willkie probably will get a lot of normally Democratic votes (being so recently a Democrat himself), but for that very reason probably will lose some of the ordinarily die-hard Republicans. Personally, I think it's a little too early to tell about any of these supposed trends. The political picture, based as it is almost entirely on the foreign situation plus the shifting whim of the American voter, can change a half dozen times between now and November... but it is anybody's guess at the moment as to what it is going to change from.

R. E. B., Joplin, Mo.—Thanks for the tip on the Admiral Dewey report at the navy department. The department generously is working on it for me and if I uncover any more minor or major prophecies on modern warfare, will be sure to let you know.

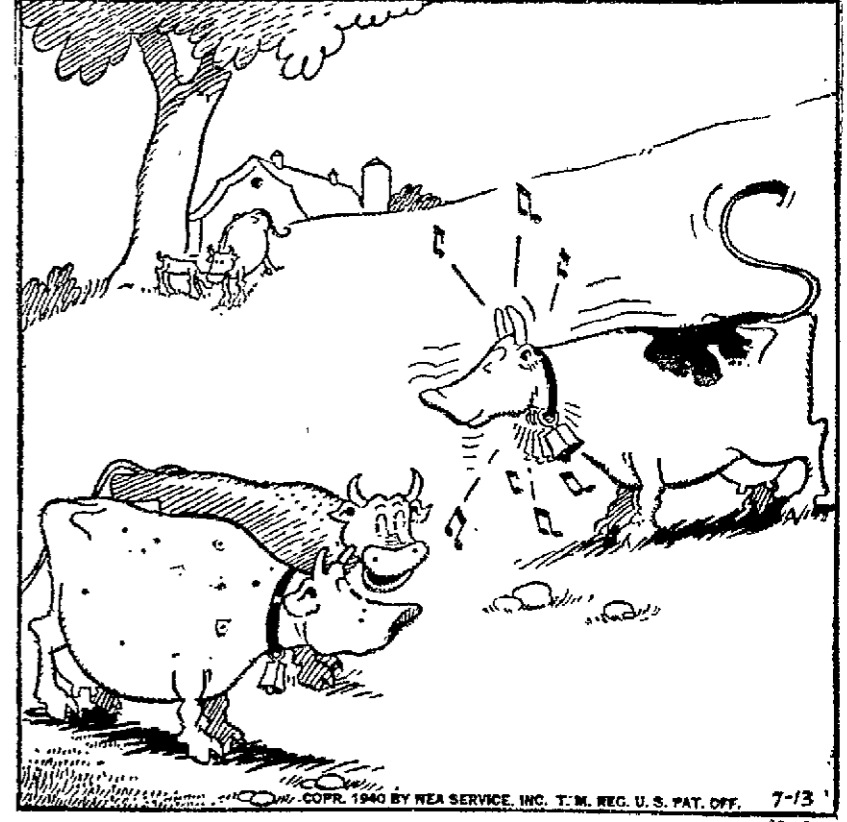

Mrs. D. C. L., Denver, Colo.—I think I can assure you that the government is not devoting ALL its time to rearmament and overlooking the possibilities of the trade war which may result when European battles are over. My hunch is that the first big hint of how much time is being devoted to it will come out of the Pan-American conference at Havana. Because trade wars have no roots in strutting and braggadocio, our economic plans are a good deal more secret than our armament aims. Traders have to be sly, but when it comes to putting on armor, all nations act like little boys and throw out their chests and say: "Just look how strong I am. If you touch me, I'll punch your middle clear back to your spine."

Harriet Isobel Taggart Becomes Bride of Southern Doctor in Ceremony at Tidoute

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Bristol Taggart at Tidoute was the scene of a lovely wedding Friday morning, when their daughter, Miss Harriet Isobel Taggart, became the bride of Dr. Richard L. Pearce, of Durham, N. C., son of Prof. and Mrs. A. S. Pearce, of Charlottesville, Va.
The ceremony was performed by Rev. Henry N. Parsley, of Durham, using a 17th century prayer book obtained in England. The vows were taken before an altar banked with evergreens and lilies, and the traditional wedding music was provided by Miss Clara Dunn, of Bryn Mawr, at the piano, and Mrs. G. O. Phillips, of Erie, violinist.
The bride was gown in a dress of white net with shirred square neckline, short puffed sleeves and a shirred net girdle. Her finger tip net veil was held in place with orange blossoms. Her flowers were a bridal bouquet of white rosebuds and lilies of the valley tied with white satin ribbon.
A wedding luncheon was held after the ceremony for the immediate families and a few friends.
Out of town guests at the wedding included the Misses Farrman, Jamestown, N. Y.; Mrs. Ruth Beatty and Susan Beatty, of Lakewood, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd W. Clinger, Elizabeth Clinger, Warren; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taggart, Pittsburgh; Mr. and Mrs. John Taggart, Ardmore; Miss Alice Grandin, Washington, D. C.; Professor and Mrs. A. S. Pearce, Dr. and Mrs. William Coffman, Charlottesville, Va.; Rev. Henry N. Parsley, Durham, N. C.; Miss Lillian Wilson, Delafield, Wis.; Dr. and Mrs. Leon Andes, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Joseph A. Clinger, Oil City; Mrs. Elliot Grandin, Priscilla, Jean, Billy and Anne Grandin, of Titusville.

On Sunday, July 14. The Golden Text is: "The hour cometh and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him" (John 4:23). Among Bible citations comprising the Lesson-Sermon is the following: "In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre. And, behold, there was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it. . . . And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye, for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here: he is risen, as he said (Matthew 28:1,2,5,6). The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "He won eternal honors. He overcame the world, the flesh, and all error, thus proving their nothingness. He wrought a full salvation from sin, sickness, and death. We need 'Christ' and him crucified. We must have trials and self-denials, as well as joys and victories, until all error is destroyed" (p. 39).

Hollywood Sights & Sound

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—Contract. A contract... They all want 'em, and sometimes they get 'em.

Maureen O'Hara didn't—not at first. They thought her singing was all right but after they tested her they suggested (oh, tactfully) that she'd be better on the air where she couldn't be seen, or on the stage where distance could lend enchantment. So Maureen took it like a trouper, and followed their advice. And every night, on the stage, her heart belonged to daddy, so they brought her back—and now she's one of the screen's beauties, and the man she married (Richard Halliday, the story boss) was one of those who advised her to go away where she could be heard but not seen.

Virginia Gilmore didn't either—not at first. She was a University of California student, set on drama, and she was going to New York to hit the stage when Sam Goldwyn's offices called and invited her for a test. . . . But when she arrived they took one look at her and said No. No! She was overweight and there were strange graces on her teeth.

When she saw Goldwyn personally, however, he signed her up. She reduced, finished with the dental braces, and found they had left her with a lisp. She studied with a diction teacher to shed that, and she still didn't have a role. She got publicity as the possessor of the "most beautiful legs" and also as a shop girl who made good as a star. (She says she worked in a store once during Christmas holidays.) The

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Contract, contract... They all want 'em, and sometimes they get 'em.

Mary Martin didn't—not at first. They thought her singing was all right but after they tested her they suggested (oh, tactfully) that she'd be better on the air where she couldn't be seen, or on the stage where distance could lend enchantment. So Mary took it like a trouper, and followed their advice. . . . And every night, on the stage, her heart belonged to daddy, so they brought her back—and now she's one of the screen's beauties, and the man she married (Richard Halliday, the story boy) was one of those who advised her to go away where she could be heard but not seen! . . .

Virginia Gilmore didn't either—not at first. . . . She was a University of California student, set on drama, and she was going to New York to hit the stage when Sam Goldwyn's offices called and invited her for a test. . . . But when she arrived they took one look at her and said, No. No! She was overweight and there were straightening braces on her teeth. When she saw Goldwyn personally, however, he signed her up. She reduced, finished with the dental braces, and found they had left her with a lisp. She studied with a diction teacher to shed that, and she still didn't have a role. She got publicity as the possessor of the "most beautiful legs" and also as a shop girl who made good as a star. (She says she worked in a store once during Christmas holidays.) The ing Christmas holidays.) She finally got a role in "Manhattan Heartbeat," new version of "Bad Girl," and now is doing "Laddie."

MAUREN O'HARA did—she got three of 'em. . . . Harry Richman saw her in an Abbey Theater school production, and met her at a party afterward. Richman recommended her to a British film company for testing—and the letter inviting her to London came on the same day that she was offered her first lead with the Abbey players. . . . She went to London, was tested, and won two contract offers—but she didn't like the terms and declined. . . . Before she left for home again, however, she met Charles Laughton, and the contract he offered put her in "Jamaica Inn" and brought her to Hollywood—to "Hunchback of Notre Dame" and "A Bill of Divorcement" and "Dance, Girl, Dance." . . .

RALPH BELLAMY did—for all the good it did him. . . . Bellamy came from mid-west stock and roadshows to Broadway in 1931, and he clicked. . . . Right away he got a contract, earning salary for 30 weeks out of 52. . . . He went to Hollywood on borrowed money and met his lay-off period, a solid run of 22 weeks, stone-broke. . . . The day his pay was to have started, the studio canceled his contract. . . . And so he went to work, as a free-lancer (non-contract player) in "The Secret Six" and started paying off his debts. . . . As a free-lancer he rarely if ever gets the girl (he does "get" Maureen O'Hara in "Dance, Girl, Dance"). But he gets the calls from the directors.

DISCOURAGEMENT

A heart sometimes grows weary. Of tasks it's long performed; Finding freedom for one brief moment. In rhythm of song. Then like the brave heart that it is Again beats on through stress and storm.

But mine is one commanding The best on land and sea-acquainted Long ago it became—to every luxury Then it made acquaintance—of frivolity.

I'm sorry dear! You say it's only me. For whom you really care! But without gold-unwise it would be. Ever—to venture where Orchids, caviar, and candle-light. Are on the bill of fare—

Stars do not have points, although they have been depicted in this form for centuries. The wishbone is the "merry thought" of a bird.

But best of all, you will be astounded by how moderate the prices are TODAY.

STEELWORKERS LEAD FIELD IN STATE PUBLIX

Hershey, Pa., July 13.—(P)—There must be something about the putting touch. Four steelworkers—two sets of brothers—spread the field in the sixth annual Pennsylvania Public Links championship yesterday to win the team title for the Leeland Club, of Sharon.

And today, one of them, Vash Hromyak, broad-shouldered Czech, was the man to beat for the individual crown. Hromyak started out this morning on the final 36 holes of the 72-hole medal play, tournament with 144 strokes and a three-shot lead over his fellow club member, Johnny Lucas.

Vash and his brother John, together with Johnny and George Lucas, scored 612 for the first 36 holes to capture the team trophy held by the Overlook Club of Lancaster.

When the day's firing ended, 71 public links players had shot themselves out of the play by failing to qualify for the last 36 holes.

Confining today's play to the low 60 and ties ruled out all those who failed to score 169 or better yesterday.

Hromyak's fine 73-71, only two over par, put him in position to possibly equal or better the record of 290 for the tournament. At least eight competitors were with in striking distance, however, from three to seven strokes behind.

Behind Lucas, in third place, was Sam Musico, Pittsburgh school teacher, and Wilmer Faber, Riverside, Reading, at 148; Arthur Garrison, Hershey, with 149; Angelo Mengali, Lancaster. Bob Kauffman, Bethlehem, and Mike Rooney, York, at 150, and Defending Champion George Bradley, Philadelphia, at 151.

WARD AND TODD IN WESTERN GOLF FINAL

Minneapolis, July 13.—(P)—Champion meets champion at Minneapolis Golf Club today for right to play for the championship of the 41st annual Western Amateur tournament.

The champions are Bud Ward of Spokane, who holds the National Amateur crown, and Harry Todd of Dallas, Texas, winner of the Western Amateur a year ago. The match, a semi-finals affair, will be over 36 holes.

FIVE LOCAL MEN Allen Is Eliminated TO COMPETE AT From State Amateur; INDIANTOWN GAP Springs Star Beaten

Five Warren marksmen have been chosen on the three teams selected to represent this district in the final shoot in the 30 calibre division to be held at Indiantown Gap on July 27 and 28, at which time the state championship team will be chosen.

Alf Nelson, 360 at the DuBois test last Sunday won him third place on the first team, the only Warren man on the top-spot aggregation.

On the second team are Paul Yagge with 352 and Freeman O. Peterson with 351, ranking No. 1 and No. 2 on the team. No. 1 spot on the third team is occupied by Ray Niver who averaged 342 and third place is held by Stewart Kuhre.

After the individual shoot at Indiantown Gap, fifty per cent of the above scores added to fifty per cent of the final scores will determine the team that goes to Camp Perry. A team of ten men, two alternates, a captain and coach will be selected.

At the national matches in 1939 the Pennsylvania Civilian team took more cups and broke more records than any other previous representative of the Keystone State. Except for Dietz, of Ridgway, all of the first team men were at Camp Perry last year.

The complete rosters: First team: Lach, Pittsburgh; Kephart, Punxsutawney; Nelson, Warren; LeRoy, Ridgway; Dietz, Ridgway; and Caste, Punxsutawney.

Second team: Yagge and Peterson; Warren; F. LeRoy, Ridgway; Caste, DuBois; Brinkley, Pittsburgh; Casaday, Pittsburgh.

Third team: Niver, Warren; Stiller, Punxsutawney; Kuhre, Warren; Dallenbach, Ridgway; Johnson, DuBois, and McConnell, Punxsutawney.

BOBBY JONES PLAYS FOR RED CROSS TODAY

New York, July 13.—(P)—Robert Tyne (just call him Bobby) Jones, Jr., spans a 23-year period today to come back to golf in the name of sweet charity.

He pairs with Jimmy Thomson, the tee-shot slugger, against Horton Smith and the veteran Charley Mayo, Sr., in an 18-hole best-ball match at Lido Country Club for the Red Cross fund for European relief. This is the second of four such exhibitions he is playing to raise funds for the Red Cross.

Before stepping up to the tee today, Bob recalled he had played similar exhibitions for more than a year and a half for just such a purpose back in 1917-18.

"Golf exhibitions weren't nearly so numerous in those days," he said. "As a result, we figured out that our matches over that period netted about $150,000 for the Red Cross. I hope we can do as well this time."

QUAKER STATES AT FORGE FIELD SUNDAY

The only baseball in the section tomorrow will be at the National Forge where Elmo Wolfe's charges will clash with the Smethport Quaker States in a New York-Pennsylvania League game.

The tilt is carded for three o'clock.

Russ Caffery, Titusville twirler, reported for practice yesterday and may see service against the Quaker States tomorrow. Caffery was signed to bolster the pitching staff which was depleted by injuries to Dick "Dazzler" Hines and Fred "No-Hit" Gagliardi.

Minneapolis, July 13.—(P)—Champion meets champion at Minneapolis Golf Club today for right to play for the championship of the 41st annual Western Amateur tournament.

The champions are Bud Ward of Spokane, who holds the National Amateur crown, and Harry Todd of Dallas, Texas, winner of the Western Amateur a year ago. The match, a semi-finals affair, will be over 36 holes.

In the other semi-final match Jim Ferrier of Sydney, Australia, holder of both the Amateur and Open crowns in that country, meets George Victor of Chicago.

As if Johnny Goodman of Omaha, the former National Open and Amateur titlist, wasn't enough to contend with, Ward had a pine tree and a bush to overcome before getting a 1 up edge on his opponent in the quarter-finals Friday.

The pine tree cost him loss of a hole and the bush a stroke which resulted in half of another. Todd had a relatively easy time in defeating Bill Kostelocky of Fargo in the quarter-finals, 6 and 4.

CONEWANGO VALLEY POSTPONES MATCH

Because the majority of the top night-shotmakers were unable to make the trip, the scheduled Titusville-Warren golf match carded for the Titusville links this afternoon was postponed.

The match will be scheduled at a later date.

HEMSLEY COMES UP WITH ALIBI FOR LONE HIT

Philadelphia, July 13.—(P)—A blister kept Cleveland's Bobby Feller from chalking up his second no-hit, no-run game of the season says Rollie Hemsley, Feller's battery mate.

The 21-year-old Iowa farm boy turned in a 1 to 0 one-hit performance against the Athletics last night.

For seven innings the pride of Van Meter, Ia., mowed down the A's without a hit, only one man reaching first by getting a walk. Then Dick Siebert, first man up for the A's in the eighth, singled over second base.

"Siebert's a first-ball hitter," Hemsley declared. "If it wasn't for that blister we have cured him on the first pitch. But the blister gave Bob trouble when he tried to throw a hook so we gave Siebert a fast one and he hit it."

The blister developed on the fourth finger of Feller's right hand and resulted, Hemsley explained, from the force with which the hurler gripped the ball.

On opening day in Chicago April 16 Feller twice struck out eight against the White Sox, striking out eight and giving up five bases on balls.

He had better control last night. He retired the first 11 men to face him—six on strikeouts—before Al Brancato walked. After that the A's went down in order until Siebert's single. Then with two down, Al Rubeling walked and Feller uncorked a wild pitch to put men on second and third.

A hit at this stage would have given the A's a 2 to 1 victory, but Feller slipped three strikes against Finchhitter Chubby Dean. Altogether he fanned 13 batters, five short of his own major league record of 18 established two years ago.

Associated Press Sports Writer
There just doesn't seem to be any substitute for speed.

Take the three games played in the major leagues yesterday and last night. In each one, a pitcher with a blistering fast ball emerged the hero.

Bobby Feller, whose fast ball in a night game is harder to see than a black cat in a coal mine, came through with his 14th triumph of the season, a splendidly pitched one-hitter that blanketed the Athletics, 1-0.

The Phillies' Hugh Mulcahy, also a righthander, was slightly less sensational but almost as effective in scattering seven hits to beat the Pirates 6-3.

And the Cubs' Vern Olsen, a portly pitcher with a nice touch of lightning, had the Boston Bees hanging on the ropes as he mixed his high hard one with his "sink-er ball". They touched him for only five safeties in absorbing a 2-0 shellacking.

Of the three, Feller's performance was by far the finest. He lost his chance for his second no-hitter of the season when Dick (The Villain) Siebert punched out a clean single in the eighth inning. Bobby, in keeping the Indians on top of the American League, walked only two batters while striking out 13.

Johnny Babich, Feller's foe, held Cleveland to six hits with a creditable performance. Ben Chapman and Lou Boudreau socked successive doubles in the third for the run that spelled victory.

The triumph increased the Indians' lead to one full game over the idle Detroit Tigers.

In the Phillie-Pirate game, Mulcahy had to make a deep bow in the direction of Art Mahan, who did yeoman service in the winning cause with a single to right with the bases packed in the fifth inning. That was the payoff blow and came after singles by Merrill May and Bob Bragan and a pass to Bill Atwood had loaded the bags.

The victory was Mulcahy's eighth against 10 losses. His mates punched out 12 hits—four of them by Mahan—off four Pirate pitchers.

Olsen, in winning his fifth big league game, issued seven bases on balls to keep the Bees in the game, but tightened in the pinches and left 12 runners stranded on the bases.

All other games in both leagues were rained out.

The People's Tournament

SPORT SCATTERINGS

The National Public Links championship which will be played over Detroit's Rackham course July 22-27 will attract local interest this year because of the participation of "String" Nash, of Erie, well known in this city for the basketball he played against Warren teams a decade and a half ago and for the games he has since refereed at Beatty court. Nash and Al Wolfe used to stage an annual race for high scoring honors when "String" was sharpshooting for Erie Central and Wolfe was the leading marksman for Warren High cage teams. The Erie linksman, who is an instructor in the schools of that city, qualified for the Publink test in the Buffalo district.

The public links tourney brings together the true amateurs—the lads who can't afford to belong to private clubs and who play par-shattering golf on the municipal courses, often without benefit of the best equipment. The current titlist is Andy Szewko, a Pittsburgh steel worker, who trades his pudding iron for a midiron one week out of the year and swaps shots with the stars of public courses of the nation. More players attempt to qualify for the Publink than any other golf meeting, 200 of these getting berths. Chief challenger for Szewko's title is Walter Burkemo, occupation unknown to this writer, who was semi-finalist in 1938 when the title was taken by Al Leach, Cleveland WPA timekeeper. Woody Malloy, Detroit office clerk, and Bruce McCormick, Los Angeles fire fighter, are also favorites.

With Jamestown back in the Pony League, this bureau has been deluged with questions as to the possibility of Warren entering the circuit next season. We can only report that we are constantly in touch with the officials of the league and that we have been promised that whenever anything breaks toward an eight-team league, Warren will get first consideration. The re-entry of Jamestown makes this possibility even better than it was earlier in the spring, and Warren's chances have been greatly improved by the expressed intention of the school board to construct a fence around Russell Field. Even without a suitable field last year, there were those who seriously considered coming into Warren with a Pony League team and doing the best they could with what was at hand.

Bill Buckley, then business manager of Batavia and now occupying a similar post at Jamestown after a reign at McKeesport, told your agent last season that he started in at Batavia with a lot less than Warren had to offer, except that the businessmen there were quick to realize the value of their town being in organized ball. At that time they had a snow fence and canvas around the park there and used the high school's bleachers. In less than a year Batavia provided a fine field with permanent stands and lights and is now coming money with a league-leading ball team. Ask the man who owned one—semi-pro baseball is the toughest racket there is, and unless organized ball sticks its head over our local horizon within the near future, rebuilding Warren's position in the national pastime will be somewhat more than a man-sized job.

While the entire receipts would go to the Red Cross, that splendid organization would not be the only beneficiary in proposed tennis matches between amateurs and professionals at Forest Hills, Aug. 30-September 2.

From the money players' standpoint, the matches would pave the way for future open tournaments . . . make tennis the democratic sport it should be.

Open tournaments would provide the United States Lawn Tennis Association with a new source of revenue . . . badly needed right now because of the international situation.

And not the least important would be the opportunity given simon-pures to obtain tournament experience against the greatest players.

The ridiculous stand of tennis' brass hats against open tournaments long has denied young players the advantage the United States Golf Association has given its brightest prospects—that of rubbing elbows with the masters on the firing line. From Francis Ouimet to Bud Ward, amateur golfers have been aided immeasurably by being permitted to play the pros for keeps.

I recall asking Ellsworth Vines to give me a reason for Robert Riggs' inconsistency . . . to explain why the little fellow failed to go on after reaching a certain height.

"Lack of opposition," replied Elly Vines. "No one among the amateurs to quicken his pace . . . bring out his best."

Why should the brilliant competition he needs be denied Bobby Riggs? Why should the brilliant youngster, Welby Van Horn and Frank Kovacs, be denied the chance to gain experience and round out their games in combat with the Budegs and Perrys?

STEELWORKERS LEAD FIELD IN STATE PUBLINK

Hershey, Pa., July 13.—(P)—There must be something about a job in the steel mills that improves the putting touch.

Four steelworkers—two sets of brothers—spreadeagled the field in the sixth annual Pennsylvania Public Links championship yesterday to win the team title for the Lehigh Club, of Sharon.

And today, one of them, Vash Hromyak, broad-shouldered Czech, was the man to beat for the individual crown.

Hromyak started out this morning on the final 36 holes of the 72-hole medal play tournament with 144 strokes and a three-shot lead over his fellow club member, Johnny Lucas.

Vash and his brother John, together with Johnny and George Lucas, scored 612 for the first 36 holes to capture the team trophy held by the Overlook Club of Lancaster.

When the day's firing ended, 71 public links players had shot themselves out of the play by failing to qualify for the last 36 holes.

Confining today's play to the low 60 and tied ruled out all those who failed to score 169 or better yesterday.

Hromyak's fine 73-71, only two over par, put him in position to possibly equal or better the record of 290 for the tournament. At least eight competitors were within striking distance, however, from three to seven strokes behind.

Behind Lucas, in third place, was Sam Musico, Pittsburgh school teacher, and Wilmer Faber, Riverside, Reading, at 148; Arthur Garrison, Hershey, with 149; Angelo Mengali, Lancaster, Bob Kauffman, Bethlehem, and Mike Rooney, York, at 150, and Defending Champion George Bradley, Philadelphia, at 151.

The tilt is carded for three o'clock.

Russ Caffery, Titusville twirler, reported for practice yesterday and may see service against the Quaker States tomorrow. Caffery was signed to bolster the pitching staff which was depleted by injuries to Dick "Dazzler" Hines and Fred "No-Hit" Gagliardi.

Having knocked defending titlist Frank Allen out of the picture, Steelworker Steve Kovach of Brackenridge had an easier path today towards the State Amateur golf championship.

Playing between shifts at his mill job, Kovach went around in par to eliminate the Pittston insurance man 4 and 2 in a quarter-final match yesterday. That gave him revenge for Allen's mastery over him in the final last year.

Allen got off the tees poorly and wound up three down on the first nine. Kovach sank a 60-footer for a birdie three on the 15th and ended the battle with a fine drive to the pin for a birdie two on the next green.

His semi-final opponent today was Knox Young, Jr., of Shannopin. Young's victories yesterday were over Jim Elliott of Philadelphia, 3 and 2, and B. R. Shriver of Fox Chapel 5 and 4.

In the other semi-final tilt today, Jack Buchanan, Philadelphia electrical contractor who has played in 20 state amateur events, met Harry Simpson, 20-year-old sophomore from the University of Pittsburgh.

FIVE LOCAL MEN TO COMPETE AT INDIANTOWN GAP

Five Warren marksmen have been chosen on the three teams selected to represent this district in the final shoot in the 30 calibre division to be held at Indiantown Gap on July 27 and 28, at which time the state championship team will be chosen.

Alf Nelson's 360 at the DuBois test last Sunday won him third place on the first team, the only Warren man on the top-spot aggregation.

On the second team are Paul Yagge with 352 and Freeman O. Peterson with 351, ranking No. 1 and No. 2 on the team. No. 1 spot on the third team is occupied by Ray Niver who averaged 342 and third place is held by Stewart Kuhre.

After the individual shoot at Indiantown Gap, fifty per cent of the above scores added to fifty per cent of the final scores will determine the team that goes to Camp Perry. A team of ten men, two alternates, a captain and coach will be selected.

At the national matches in 1939 the Pennsylvania Civilian team took more cups and broke more records than any other previous representative of the Keystone State. Except for Dietz, of Ridgeway, all of the first team men were at Camp Perry last year.

The complete rosters: First team: Lach, Pittsburgh; Kephart, Punksatunawey; Nelson, Warren; LeRoy, Ridgeway; Dietz, Ridgeway; and Carci, Punksatunawey.

Second team: Yagge and Peterson, Warren; F. LeRoy, Ridgeway; Couse, DuBois; Brinkley, Pittsburgh; Casaday, Pittsburgh.

Third team: Niver, Warren; Stiller, Punksatunawey; Kuhre, Warren; Dalenbach, Ridgeway; Johnson, DuBois, and McConnell, Punksatunawey.

Tridd team: Niver, Warren; Stiller, Punksatunawey; Kuhre, Warren; Dalenbach, Ridgeway; Johnson, DuBois, and McConnell, Punksatunawey.

Softball Notes

ELKS WIN
The Warren Elks defeated a Sheffield softball team, 9-6 at the South Side diamond last evening.

Red Baldensperger featured with a home run for the winners. Batteries were Christensen and Baldensperger for the Elks; Haden, Peroski and Wallon for Sheffield.

WIN FOR DODGERS
In the Elks Softball League, the Dodgers defeated the Pirates, 6 to 5, at the South Side diamond last evening. Batteries for the winners were Greenlund and Mathis and for the Pirates, Murphy and Kyler.

CASEYS TO OIL CITY
The members of the Warren Knights of Columbus team are requested to meet tomorrow afternoon at 12:30 o'clock at St. Joseph's School to go to Oil City where they will clash with the Casey City League team of that city.

COUNTS WIN AGAIN
With "Lefty" Check slamming two home runs and Hahn whalloping a 360-foot circuit smash, the longest ever seen at the West Side diamond, Count's restaurant rode to a 9-6 victory over the Marconi Club last night in a City League encounter. J. LeTrent went the distance for the winners and helped himself to two hits.

Strasbaugh and Logan allowed Count's lads nine hits, one less than the Marconi collected, but the first half champs connected when it counted. The two hurlers each had two hits, one of Strasbaugh's being a home run.

Casey Williams, veteran of the good old days, made several spectacular catches.

ABOUT RAINBOWS
Rainbows appear in a multitude of forms. They vary in width, and in number and order of colors. A sheet of water, as well as a sun which is reflected by such a surface, may give us a primary and secondary reflected rainbow in the sky, intersecting the real rainbow.

MARKET, WITH EYES ON CHICAGO AND EUROPE, EXPERIENCES SLUMP

New York, July 13-(AP)-The stock market had one eye cocked on Chicago and the other on Europe today, and the net result was general speculative astigmatism. Many leaders failed to appear on the ticker tape during the two-hour proceedings. Numerous issues sold at Friday's final quotations and negligible gains and losses were sprinkled over all departments at the close.

The proceedings were among the slowest since 1918, transfers approximating 100,000 shares.

Notwithstanding persistence of optimistic business hopes involved principally in the domestic defense spending program, brokers found the few customers who showed up in boardrooms this morning inclined to do little either way pending outcome of the Democratic convention starting Monday. Then, too, there still were fears of a possible market shock if and when Hitler touches off his threatened major blast at England, intensified German air raids led some to the belief the latter might be imminent.

Edging forward occasionally were Chrysler, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Boeing, United Aircraft, Sperry, Homestake Mining, Standard Oil of N. J., U. S. Gypsum and Southern Railway.

Hesitant were U. S. Steel, Du Pont, Texas Corp., Anaconda, Kennecott, Johns-Manville, Woolworth and Eastman Kodak.

Pressure Exerted on Farley (From Page One)

at the one serious moment in a press conference devoted otherwise to wise-cracking and laughter. A reporter asked whether Farley would "take a walk" if Mr. Roosevelt were nominated.

His mood suddenly changed to one of intense earnestness as he answered: "Everybody who knows anything about me knows that Jim Farley is a Democrat."

Only once has Farley deserted the party and that was in the New York mayoralty campaign of 1935. In that year he supported Joseph V. McKee, who had been acting mayor after James J. Walker's withdrawal, against John P. O'Brien, the Tammany nominee, and Fiorello La Guardia, a fusionist, who won the election.

As Farley's associates awaited his decision, the convention machinery turned steadily, with the resolutions committee continuing its hearings prior to the adoption of a platform surely approving new deal policy on both foreign and domestic questions. Today's principal witnesses were Edward A. O'Neal of the American Farm Bureau Federation and Miss Josephine Roche, former assistant secretary of the treasury, speaking for the National Consumers League.

The committee had already heard Philip Murray, CIO spokesman, charge that Commonwealth and Southern, utilities company headed by Charles E. Wilson, until recently, by Wendell Wilkie, the Republican nominee, was violating the Wagner labor act at the time the Philadelphia convention selected him as its candidate.

Complete uncertainty surrounded the question of who would be the party's vice presidential nominee. Draft-Roosevelt leaders obviously were at pains to make it plain that the convention was to be free to make its own choice. Names mentioned in this connection included Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, who is to be the third term forward; Secretary Hull, and even Vice President Garner, whose name is to be presented to the convention as an anti-third term candidate.

MARKET, WITH EYES ON CHICAGO AND EUROPE, EXPERIENCES SLUMP

New York, July 13.—(P)—The stock market had one eye cocked on Chicago and the other on Europe today, and the net result was general speculative astigmatism. Many leaders failed to appear on the ticker tape during the two-hour proceedings. Numerous issues sold at Friday's final quotations and negligible gains and losses were sprinkled over all departments at the close.

The proceedings were among the slowest since 1918, transfers approximating 100,000 shares. Notwithstanding persistence of optimistic business hopes involved principally in the domestic defense spending program, brokers found the few customers who showed up in boardrooms this morning inclined to do little either way pending outcome of the Democratic convention starting Monday. Then, too, there still were fears of a possible market shock if and when Hitler touches off his threatened major blast at England. Intensified German air raids led some to the belief the latter might be imminent.

Edging forward occasionally were Chrysler, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Boeing, United Aircraft, Sperry, Homestake Mining, Standard Oil of N. J., U. S. Gypsum and Southern Railway.

Hesitant were U. S. Steel, du Pont, Texas Corp., Anaconda, Kennecott, Johns-Manville, Woolworth and Eastman Kodak.

Only once has Farley decided the party and that was in the New York majority campaign of 1933. In that year he supported Joseph V. McKee, who had been acting mayor after James J. Walker's withdrawal, against John P. O'Brien the Tammany nominee, and Fiorello La Guardia, a fusionist, who won the election.

As Farley's associates awaited his decision the convention machinery turned steadily, with the resolutions committee continuing its hearings prior to the adoption of a platform surely approving new deal policy on both foreign and domestic questions. Today's principal witnesses were Edward A. O'Neal of the American Farm Bureau Federation and Miss Josephine Roche, former assistant secretary of the treasury, speaking for the National Consumers League.

The committee had already heard Philip Murray, CIO spokesman, charge that Commonwealth and Southern, utilities company headed, until recently, by Wendell Willkie, the Republican nominee, was violating the Wagner labor act at the Philadelphia convention selected him as its candidate.

Complete uncertainty surrounded the question of who would be the party's vice presidential nominee. Draft-Roosevelt leaders obviously were at pains to make it plain that the convention was to be free to make its own choice. Names mentioned in this connection included Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, who is to be the third term floor leader; Secretary Hull, and even Vice President Garner, whose name is to be presented to the convention as an anti-third term candidate.

At least 10 persons were killed in Scotland during extensive raids yesterday, but no announcement was made concerning the casualties resulting from last night's attacks.

British authorities, summing up the results of daily German air raids during the past week, said that Nazi attempts to blockade Britain by air attacks on ports and shipping so far had failed.

Damage inflicted on shipping was described as small, while the Germans were estimated to have lost more than $4,000,000 worth of aircraft in the last seven days.

President Roosevelt's new request may receive a less critical reception in congress, some believed. It was pointed out that the May 31 message was delivered before the battle for France began, and the military situation abroad has changed radically in the subsequent six weeks.

If the compulsory training bill is passed, the war department wishes to mobilize the entire guard for "at least a year." Drafted recruits would be trained in the ranks of the regular army and guard, with a total of 1,415,000 men in uniform by next April.

FISH CULTURIST ADDRESSES CLUB AT SHEFFIELD

Sheffield, July 13. An informal talk by Alfred Riley, fish culturist in charge of the federal government's newly built trout rearing station on Farnsworth Run, Cherry Grove township, was a feature of the regular July meeting of the Sheffield Rod and Gun Club, held Thursday evening in American Legion Home.

Mr. Riley described how the young trout, all of which are shipped to the rearing station from government hatcheries, are taken care of at the Farnsworth establishment. He cited some interesting facts about their habits, rate of growth, etc.

The fish, less than an inch in length when received, are kept in the rearing ponds until they are three or more inches long, when they are removed and stocked in suitable streams of the district. More than 24,000 of the fingerling trout recently were so stocked. Mr. Riley informed his listeners, adding that more will be stocked by fall, including approximately 50,000 each of brown and rainbows.

Mr. Riley was introduced by A. K. Daniels, club president.

Announcement was made that the petition for incorporation of the club is ready for presentation before the county court, with the presentation expected to be made within the next few days.

It was also announced that the executive board had appointed D. E. Kinney fourth vice president to succeed Oral Goode, who has moved away. The next meeting of the club will be held Thursday, August 1.

Farmers can find many uses for the trees growing on their farms. Most of the varieties of trees growing in the farm woodlot can be used for repair and construction purposes, according to County Agent O. C. Tritt. He points out that since the properties of the woods vary widely, care must be exercised in fitting the kind of wood to the use. Chief properties of woods that affect their use are hardness, strength, nail-holding ability, durability and shrinkage.

White pine, white oak, and hemlock are good for shingles.

Around New York

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK.—Last week we told you something about a black cat named Friday and a white pup named Thursday of which we are very fond. But we made no mention of Cynthia Ann, who is called Tim for short, because it really wasn't Tim's story, for one thing, and our space was running short for another.

But Cynthia composes the trimmings at our house. She is 13 years old and a fine old battle-axe she is. Cynthia is a tortoiseshell persian-angora that I have had ever since she was five weeks old. She tolerates Thursday and Friday but does not accept them. She is grumpy at times and not given to nonsense, which is her right. Because she has missed dear old dogs, lightning, and pneumonia too many times to have much faith in hoodlums who would make her life miserable if she didn't turn on them now and then and administer a good whipping.

THERE is one thing about Cynthia that puzzles people at times, especially people who know and understand cats. Her tail seems a little short for her body. Not long ago a guest at our house, while remarking on some catnip, turned around and said, "Say, this cat has an awfully short tail, hasn't she?"

The answer is, yes, Cynthia's tail is short. About two or three inches shorter than it used to be or has any right to be. It was an accident, just one of those strange things that sometimes happen to cats in houses where live newspapermen who go out without bothering to close the door behind them.

One day a big wind sprang suddenly up and caught hold of the door and slammed it shut just as Cynthia was passing out of the door. The force of that slammed door pinched off her tail . . . it pinched off a good two inches of the plume . . . You never saw such a tall as Cynthia's . . . Or heard such an agonized shriek as she let out when the door caught her . . . Well, I administered a little first aid, which was all right in a little while, and between me and a big saucer of juicy red salmon, we made her forget all about her shorn tip.

Then I picked up the end of her tail and took it up stairs. Next day, when I came back from the office, it was still there. So I tied a string around it and hung it on my tie-rack, and it's still there . . . It's been dangling from the rack with my neckties for nearly three years.

MOST people seldom realize that the personalities of cats are far more distinctively those of dogs. As a matter of fact, I never saw two cats that were alike in any way, yet I have owned dogs with the sameness of peas. Our cats don't even speak the same language. One craves fish and fowl, the other red meat. One goes out only at night; the other will go out night or day. When they sing, they sing in different keys. Friday enjoys a prow in the rain. Cynthia wouldn't be caught dead in even the faintest suggestion of a summer shower. One of our cats likes snow. The other shudders at the thought of snow.

On the other hand, dogs usually like what you like. They will follow you through rain and fog. They do because they are more faithful than other animals. They just don't give a hoot whether they get their feet muddy or not.

Where This Bank Gets The Money It Lends

The funds we have available to lend and to invest are derived from three primary sources:

1. That part of our capital and surplus which is not invested in building, furniture, fixtures, and equipment.
2. Deposits of customers, after a sufficient amount has been set aside to take care of current withdrawals.
3. The excess of earnings over expenses.

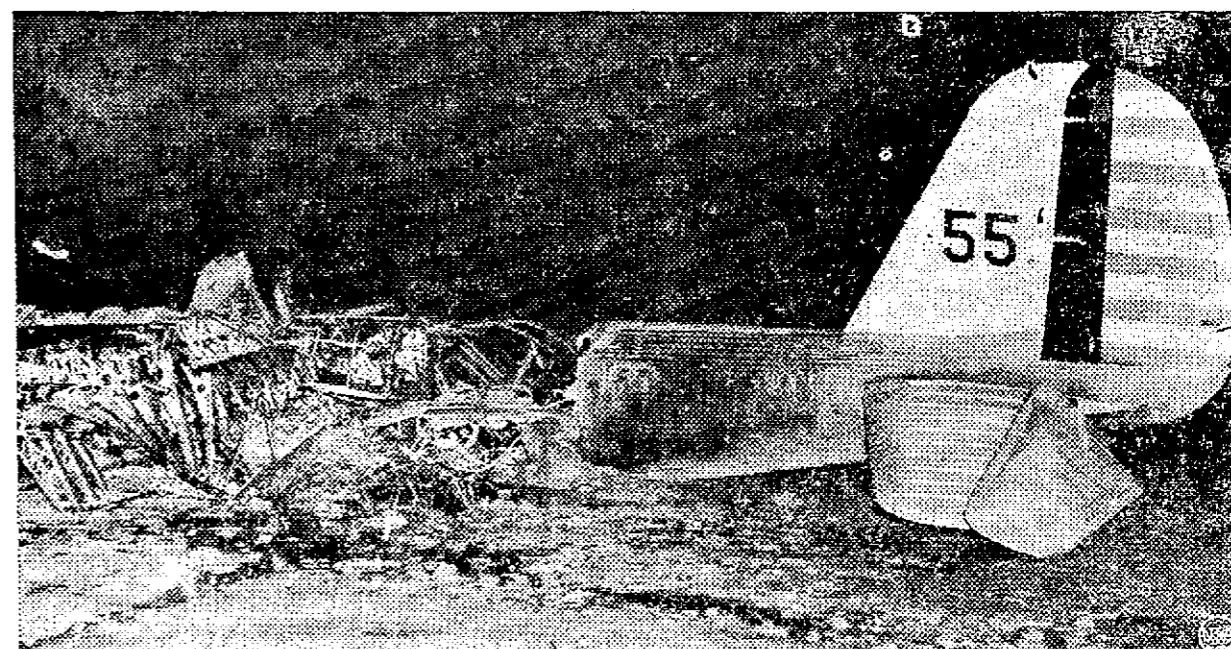

Secondary sources of loanable funds are afforded by rediscounting eligible paper of customers at the Federal Reserve Bank, or by the bank borrowing additional funds on its own securities. It is very seldom that banks avail themselves of these privileges.

Around New York

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Last week we told you something about a black cat named Friday and a white pup named Thursday of which we are very fond. But we made no mention of Cynthia-Ann, who is called Tin for short, because it really wasn't Tin's story, for one thing, and our space was running short for another.

But Cynthia composes the triumvirate at our house. She is 13 years old and a fine old battle-axe she is. Cynthia is a tortoiseshell persian-angora that I have had ever since she was five weeks old. She tolerates Thursday and Friday but does not accept them. She is grumpy at times and not given to nonsense, which is her right. Because she has missed death by dogs, lightning, and pneumonia too many times to have much faith in hoodlums who would make her life miserable if she didn't turn on them now and then and administer a good whipping.

THERE is one thing about Cynthia that puzzles people at times, especially people who know and understand cats. Her tail seems a little short for her body. Not long ago a guest at our house, while rationing out some catnip, turned around and said, "Say, this cat has an awfully short tail, hasn't she?"

The answer is, yes, Cynthia's tail is short. About two or three inches shorter than it used to be or has any right to be. It was an accident, just one of those strange things that sometimes happen to cats in houses where live newspapermen who go out without bothering to close the door behind them.

One day a big wind sprang suddenly up and caught hold of the door and slammed it shut just as Cynthia was passing out of the door. The force of that slammed door pinched off her tail . . . it pinched off a good two inches of the plume . . . You never saw such a tall as Cynthia's . . . Or heard such an agonized shriek as she let out when the door caught her . . . Well, I administered a little first aid, which was all right in a little while, and between me and a big saucer of juicy red salmon, we made her forget all about her short tip.

Then I picked up the end of her tail and took it up stairs. Next day, when I came back from the office, it was still there. So I tied a string around it and hung it on my tie-rack, and it's still there . . . It's been dangling from the rack with my neckties for nearly three years.

MOST people seldom realize that the personalities of cats are far more distinctive than those of dogs. As a matter of fact, I never saw two cats that were alike in any way, yet I have owned dogs with the sameness of peas. Our cats don't even speak the same language. One craves fish and fowl, the other red meat. One goes out only at night; the other will go out night or day. When they sing, they sing in different keys. Friday enjoys a prow in the rain. Cynthia wouldn't be caught dead in even the faintest suggestion of a summer shower. One of our cats likes snow. The other shudders at the thought of snow.

On the other hand, dogs usually like what you like. They will follow you through rain and fog. This isn't because they are more faithful than other animals. They just don't give a hoot whether they get their feet muddy or not.

Where This Bank Gets The Money It Lends

The funds we have available to lend and to invest are derived from three primary sources:

1. That part of our capital and surplus which is not invested in building, furniture, fixtures, and equipment.
2. Deposits of customers, after a sufficient amount has been set aside to take care of current withdrawals.
3. The excess of earnings over expenses.

Secondary sources of loanable funds are afforded by rediscounting eligible paper of customers at the Federal Reserve Bank, or by the bank borrowing additional funds on its own securities. It is very seldom that banks avail themselves of these privileges.

STINGLESS BEES

British scientists have produced a race of bees that don't or won't sting by mating queen bees with drones instead of letting them "choose" the swiftest and strongest bees.

In Memoriam

BORN: On July 14, 1789, in terror and bloodshed, at Paris, France, three words—Liberty, Equality, Fraternity. They were flaming beacons of hope to the oppressed peoples of Europe. Houses of horror, like the Bastille, were stormed and razed, and no man could again be imprisoned for his opinions. DIED: In July, 1940, at Vichy, France, of malnutrition and neglect, three words—Liberty, Equality, Fraternity. No more will Bastille Day (the French republic's equivalent of our Independence Day) be celebrated by Frenchmen with the dancing in the streets of Paris that is pictured above.
